

The second impeachment article

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is the text of the second article of impeachment, approved Monday by the House Judiciary Committee:

Article II

Using the powers of the office of President of the United States, Richard M. Nixon, in violation of his constitutional oath faithfully to execute the office of President of the United States and, to the best of his ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States, and in disregard of his constitutional duty to take care that the laws be faithfully executed, has repeatedly engaged in conduct violating the constitutional rights of citizens, impairing the due and proper administration of justice and the conduct of lawful inquiries, or contravening the laws governing agencies of the executive branch and the purposes of these agencies.

This conduct has included one or more of the following:

(1) He has, acting personally and through his subordinates and agents, endeavored to obtain from the Internal Revenue Service, in violation of the constitutional rights of citizens, confidential information contained in income tax returns for purposes not authorized by law, and to cause, in violation of the constitutional rights of citizens, income tax audits or other income tax investigations to be initiated or conducted in a discriminatory manner.

(2) He misused the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Secret Service, and other executive personnel, in violation or disregard of the constitutional rights of citizens, by directing, or authorizing such agencies or personnel to conduct or continue electronic surveillance or other investigations for purposes unrelated to national security, the enforcement of laws, or any other lawful function of his office; he did direct, authorize, or permit the use of information obtained thereby for purposes unrelated to national security, the enforcement of laws, or any other lawful function of his office; and he did direct the concealment of certain records made by the Federal Bureau of Investigation of electronic surveillance.

(3) He has, acting personally and through his subordinates and agents, in violation or disregard of the constitutional rights of citizens, authorized and permitted to be maintained a secret investigative unit within the office of the President, financed in part with money derived from campaign contributions to him, which unlawfully utilized the resources of the Central Intelligence Agency, engaged in covert and unlawful activities, and attempted to prejudice the constitutional right of an accused to a fair trial.

(4) He has failed to take care that the laws were faithfully executed by failing to act when he knew or had reason to know that his close subordinates endeavored to impede and frustrate lawful inquiries by duly constituted executive, judicial, and legislative entities concerning the unlawful entry into the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee, and the cover-up thereof, and concerning other unlawful activities including those relating to

Froehlich, Kastenmeier cast pro-impeachment votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reps. Harold Froehlich, R-Wis., and Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., sided with the majority Monday night when the House Judiciary Committee, on a 28-10 roll call, voted to recommend a second article of impeachment of President Nixon.

Kastenmeier was one of 21 Democrats and Froehlich one of seven Republicans voting for the article, which accuses Nixon of abusing the powers of the presidency.

Earlier, Kastenmeier and Froehlich also were with the majority when the committee refused to strike from a proposed impeachment article a section charging the president with abusing the FBI and other agencies in electronic surveillance activities.

Twenty-one Democrats and seven Republicans voted against the motion to strike.

Froehlich and Kastenmeier split when the committee, on a 24-14 roll call, rejected an amendment to a proposed impeachment article which would have narrowed the language by restricting a count on cover-up activities to the Watergate break-in and deleting the phrase "and concerning other matters."

Froehlich was among 12 Republicans and two Democrats who voted for the amendment. Kastenmeier joined 19 Democrats and five Republicans in voting against it.

2nd article approved, 3rd under consideration

WASHINGTON (AP) — With approval of two broad impeachment articles behind it, the House Judiciary Committee opened debate today on whether President Nixon should be charged as well for his refusal to turn over subpoenaed tape recordings and other materials to its inquiry.

The first impeachment article to be proposed by a Republican was offered by Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, the minority's second-ranking member.

The article said Nixon "has failed without lawful cause or excuse" to produce the materials from 147 conversations which the committee sought in eight subpoenas issued during April, May and June.

"The prime example of stonewalling is right there," McClory told the committee on its sixth day of nationally broadcast debate.

In a bid to speed up proceedings, the panel agreed to a two-hour limit for general debate on the proposal.

Other proposed articles on Nixon's personal finances and on the secret bombing of Cambodia were to be introduced later. Committee members were unsure if they could finish their deliberations by tonight.

The committee climaxed a 12-hour session Monday night by approving, 28 to 10, an article charging Nixon with violating his oath of office and his constitutional duties.

McClory predicted in advance of debate that his proposed third article would be approved 22 to 16.

"Congress itself is pitted against the executive," he said in defense of his proposal. He said executive privilege "has no place in an impeachment inquiry."

McClory's swing to the proimpeachment side Monday in the abuse of power debate produced the most one-sided substantive vote of the public deliberations.

Seven Republicans joined the 21 committee Democrats in support of the article, which many of them judged to be stronger than the obstruction of justice article approved Saturday, 27-11.

"Just as a consistent abuse of power holds more danger for the republic than a single criminal act, so is this a far more serious charge than in the article already adopted," said Rep. Lawrence J. Hogan, R-Md., a leading supporter of Article II.

Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., called the committee's action "a victory for justice" and said history may compare it to the challenge of the English barons that led to the signing of the Magna Carta in 1215, a milestone in the growth of political liberty in England.

President Nixon's supporters on the panel viewed the proceedings darkly. "I'm deeply concerned for the future of the presidency," said Rep. Delbert L. Latta, R-Ohio.

Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., said the committee was taking a step toward parliamentary government by basing impeachment on so vague a charge as abuse of presidential power.

But the Democrats and Republicans supporting the article said the offenses charged against Nixon were so serious they threatened the freedom of the American people.

Article II is based on the oath a President takes to faithfully execute his office and to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution, and on the duty the Constitution imposes on him to see that the laws are faithfully executed.

It charges Nixon with violating both his oath and his constitutional duties by misusing the Internal Revenue Service, authorizing illegal wiretaps, establishing a secret investigative unit in the White House that engaged in unlawful activities, and interfering with investigations of the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

"We came perilously close to losing our basic freedoms," said Rep. Paul S. Sarbanes, D-Md., in a final round of debate before the vote. "And it is for that reason we must act affirmatively tonight."

During the long day and night of debate on the article, Nixon's supporters insisted there either was no evidence linking the President to the illegal acts charged, or that the acts were justified by national security considerations.

The article covers acts by Nixon's subordinates, as well as his own, a provision challenged by Wiggins as attempting to hold Nixon responsible for the misdeeds of others.

But McClory, citing the score of former White House and Nixon re-election campaign officials either in prison or under indictment, said Nixon could not escape responsibility.

"A President can only act through his subordinates," McClory said. "The question is, is he tolerating, has he tolerated this kind of conduct in and around the White House?"

Much of the debate centered on the establishment of the plumbers investigative unit in the White House, which Nixon's defenders said was entirely justified by national security concerns caused by the leaking of the Pentagon Papers by Daniel Ellsberg.

Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., said between the administration's wiretapping of private citizens and the operations of the plumbers unit, "the Nixon White House made the secret police a reality in the United States."

The third article to be proposed is also based on Nixon's oath of office and constitutional requirement to see that the laws are faithfully executed.

It states that he "has failed without lawful cause or excuse to produce papers and things as directed by duly authorized subpoenas..." The committee issued eight subpoenas calling for tapes of 147 conversations. It received edited transcripts of 42 conversations.

McClory's proposed article says by refusing to honor the subpoenas, Nixon was undermining the constitutional process of impeachment.

Only McClory and Hogan among the Republicans are expected to support the proposed article, and at least one Democrat, Rep. Walter Flowers, D-

Greece, Turkey agree on Cyprus

By The Associated Press

Turkey and Greece have reached a compromise agreement "in principle" for ending their military showdown on Cyprus, a spokesman for the Turkish delegation to the Geneva peace talks reported today.

He predicted the accord would be signed this afternoon.

But Greek Foreign Minister George Pavlos told newsmen that, while he is hopeful, there were still a number of problems to resolve before a truce could be signed.

The Turkish spokesman said the exact wording of the agreement was being worked out, including a compromise on the potentially explosive issue of Turkish troop withdrawals. He indicated the Turks would agree to wording in the agreement that would speak of Turkish troop reductions, rather than withdrawals.

A Greek delegate said, however, that the new Turkish formula commits the Ankara government to withdraw its invasion force when a final political settlement is reached on the Mediterranean island. The Turkish military presence thereby would be officially defined as temporary, thus saving the Greeks face.

Once an interim military agreement is concluded in Geneva, the Cyprus peace talks will be able to advance to a second stage to deal with the island republic's political future. This would include an overhauling of the Cyprus constitution as well as the 1960 agreement whereby Greece, Turkey and Britain guaranteed Cyprus independence.

These talks could begin toward the end of the first week in August, the Turkish spokesman said. One date being mentioned was Aug. 8.

Observers in Geneva reacted to the latest pronouncements with caution, recalling that several times during the six-days of talks delegates had said an agreement was near at hand. But each time the accord fell through at the last moment.

The talks again appeared headed toward failure when Turkey, which had been taking a hard line, offered new proposals at the three power conference.

The new Turkish proposals came after Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger conferred long-distance from Washington with Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit in Ankara, Turkish sources said.

Members of the Greek delegation, who voiced deep pessimism Monday night, told newsmen the atmosphere had brightened at the outset of the sixth day of tough bargaining in Geneva.

Nixon to claim Jaworski should not hear tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House spokesman said today President Nixon will claim that portions of 20 Watergate tapes being surrendered today to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica should not be passed on to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon spent much of the morning personally listening to tapes in the Lincoln sitting room at the White House.

Warren said the President has determined that he will file claims that Jaworski should be denied parts of the tapes on grounds of national security or executive privilege.

Warren said "there will be a few" such instances but added, "I am not prepared to discuss what these may be."

Under terms of an 8-0 Supreme Court ruling last Wednesday, Sirica eventually is to receive tapes and memoranda covering 64 presidential conversations, then screen them for material he deems relevant for Jaworski's purposes.

The special prosecutor subpoenaed the tapes for use as evidence in the Sept. 9 trial of six former White House and Nixon re-election campaign aides charged in connection with the Watergate cover-up.

Warren said he was not certain whether Nixon's objections to giving Jaworski some of the material on the first 20 tapes will be based on executive privilege or national security grounds, or both.

Nixon postponed until midafternoon a scheduled morning meeting with Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon.

Warren said Nixon's review of the tapes, which he said began Monday, contributed to the delay in the meeting with Simon.

Warren reported Nixon was primarily working alone at listening to tapes but that the reels were being set up for him by an aide.

Asked why a technician was not present to make certain Nixon does not push the wrong button and erase some of the material, Warren said, "all precautions are being taken to see that this will not occur."

In any event, Warren said, Nixon is listening to copies of the original reels which must be turned over to Sirica.

He said the President's chief Watergate defense attorney, James D. St. Clair, and members of St. Clair's staff also were listening to subpoenaed tapes in order to carry out a provision of the Supreme Court order that the tapes be accompanied by a White House analysis and index of their content.

Export quotas enlarged on propane, natural gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department has increased the maximum permissible exports for propane, butane and natural gas liquids to 3.4 million barrels for the July-September period. The maximum for the two previous three-month periods had been 2.8 million barrels.

Make Ford president, Proxmire says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., proposed Monday that Vice President Ford be designated acting President while President Nixon concentrates his energies on defense against impeachment.

Proxmire's proposal came after Nixon economic adviser Kenneth Rush told a Joint Economic Committee hearing that Nixon can still command leadership despite his impeachment battle. Rush said Nixon could still muster Congressional and public support on economic matters.

"Presidents in the past have been under serious siege and exercised leadership," Rush said, citing Abraham Lincoln, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman.

However, Proxmire said Nixon's problems are far graver than those faced by the presidents Rush cited.

"His word, his honesty is going to be under constant attack, day after day," Proxmire said of the ongoing impeachment debate in the House and possibly later in the Senate. He said the attacks on Nixon's credibility will make it harder for him to bolster confidence in his administration.

He suggested Nixon implement the 25th Amendment to the Constitution, under which a disabled President temporarily may transfer duties of his office to the Vice President.

Rush replied that would be "extraordinarily disruptive" and cause "great harm to the country."

Mideast talks resume

WASHINGTON (AP) — A renewed U.S. diplomatic effort for additional progress in Middle East peace negotiations opens with a meeting between

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon.

Today's afternoon session will be the first of a series Kissinger expects to hold with key Israeli and Arab leaders over the next month.

The idea is to define the issues as seen by all sides in order to work out a formula to carry Israel and the Arabs beyond the current cease-fire and limited troop disengagement agreements.

In today's talks, for instance, Kissinger and Allon will go over options regarding possible disengagement with Jordan, a further troop separation between Israel and Egypt, the opening of the Geneva peace conference, the status of Palestinian Arabs and the American aid program to the Jewish state.

U.S. officials say Kissinger will not press any specific ideas on what he feels should happen, but he will urge Allon to examine all possibilities with the aim of establishing optimum flexibility.

For example, the United States wants the Jerusalem government to reconsider its previous refusals to open disengagement talks with Jordan before a second stage of negotiations is held with Egypt on further troop separations.

U.S. officials said that Kissinger is sympathetic to the domestic political problems facing Premier Yitzhak Rabin's government because of pressures by Orthodox Jews not to give up any of the West Bank of the Jordan River.

Rabin's government, which holds power by a single vote, has tried to put off the Jordanian disengagement question by claiming it is not appropriate under current circumstances since Jordan did not fight in last October's Israeli-Arab war.

However, Kissinger is expected to suggest that Allon consider carrying on second stage disengagement talks with Egypt at the same time negotiations are opened with Jordan.

A special fun-project useful for your folks

BY CAPPY DICK

Today's fun-project is a service a boy or girl can render for Mother and Dad. It is a method of keeping an accurate record of the life-span of various articles used in the home—a bottle of catsup, for example, a bottle of syrup, or a bouquet of flowers.

In the case of flowers, all that need be done is to tie a small tag to the vase, as in Figure 1, after first printing the date when the flowers were put into the vase.

By keeping a record, you will soon learn which kind of flowers last the longest indoors.

Figure 2 shows how a marker may be placed on a bottle of catsup. Stick the tag to the bottle with transparent tape, first printing the date when the bottle was opened for the first time. It will be interesting to see how long the bottle of catsup lasts you and your family.

A syrup container may be marked the same way. Figure 3 shows how to tag a can of coffee.

A package of Dad's razor blades can be tagged, as can a box of salt, a tube of toothpaste and even a package of gum.

After checking a variety of items, make up a report of your findings and present it to Mother and Dad. SEND FOR THIS CAPPY DICK PARTY BOOKLET!

Mothers, fathers, grandparents! If you are planning a party for the children and need new ideas to entertain them, you'll find 45 good ones in Cappy Dick's "Birthday Party Stunts" booklet. To get a copy, send 50 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to CAPPY DICK BOOKLETS, P.O. Box 42877, Evergreen Park, Illinois 60642.

Impossible dream comes true

Dreams do come true, it just takes a little longer to realize the ones deemed impossible. And this was certainly the case when Appleton Memorial Hospital Auxiliary was established 20 years ago — four years before the hospital first opened its doors. Membership that first year surpassed 500.

To celebrate the anniversary, the hospital administration and staff honored auxiliaries at a gala tea Friday afternoon in the hospital conference room. At this time, the charter members and past presidents were recognized. Appreciation was extended to all volunteers by the staff as well as the president of the Wisconsin State Auxiliary, Shirlee Van Roy of Hayward.

It was July 28, 1954 when the auxiliary was formally organized. That day brought to reality a dream of several women who for some time had worked for the establishment of a new hospital. According to historian's scrapbooks, one of the notable women among those involved at the time was Mrs. Karl M. Haugen. Her husband had been discussing the possibility of a new hospital among friends and business associates for several years. When in 1954 hopes and plans for this venture seemed possible, Mrs. Haugen suggested that "eventually there will be a women's auxiliary, so why should it not be now? Perhaps the women could help the hospital get started."

And help the women did as they met several times at the Haugen home, finally putting a steering committee together and gaining approval from the men for writing a constitution. The women did indeed help achieve what many considered to be an impossible dream.

The auxiliary constitution states that the purpose of its existence is "to promote among women an active interest in the Appleton Memorial Hospital and its needs and to provide ways and means of assistance."

The auxiliary historian, Mrs. Melvin Knoke, has kept complete scrapbooks which yield an exciting history of dedication, enthusiasm, generosity and hard work.

On the first executive board were Mrs. Stephen Freschl, president; Mrs. Leigh Wolfe, first vice president; Mrs. John Bonini, second vice president; Mabel Sibley, secretary; Mrs. LeRoy Stohman, treasurer; Mrs. Haugen and Mrs. James Wagg, members at large. The women who were the first to work for the auxiliary made fund-raising their prime purpose.

All monies raised prior to the opening of the new building were directed to the building fund. Early projects included a series of coffee hours around the city with the help of the Welcome Wagon groups and advance ticket sales for the Knights of Pythias Home Show. At "work open houses" candy wreaths were made to be sold. Many civic groups in Appleton and Outagamie County lent their support, sponsoring benefits for the auxiliary.

The energy with which these early auxiliaries pursued their goals enabled the organization to fulfill its first pledge of $50,000 by the end of 1958. Also given that year was the first nursing scholarship. The auxiliary was cited for outstanding project work at the American Hospital Assn. convention in Chicago. A news article in 1961 called the group "perhaps the most industrious in the U.S." as it boasted 1,000 members and $100,000 given to the hospital in seven years of existence.

The purpose was further implemented when the hospital opened. Although fund-raising efforts continued, volunteers helped with patient service work. They tackled huge amounts of sewing for furnishing the building, including drapes, towels, wrappers and tray cloths. The Gift Shop opened that year under the management of Mrs. Carl Schroeder and the book cart, flower and mail delivery began. Pink Ladies eagerly accepted the challenge given them by the hospital and community.

The organization continues today in the tradition of its beginning. Volunteer hours put in by women working on all hospital-oriented projects approaches $5,000 a year.

The Candy Stripper program, begun in 1964, is valuable to young people as training in health careers and fills a much needed service. The Gift Shop helps patients and visitors and is a successful financial venture. Projects supported by the community include the thrift sale, Christmas bazaar, musicals and bridge games. The purpose of the auxiliary lives as 1,200 women continue to serve the hospital.

Sex object turns to crafts

You're looking at a woman who hasn't been liberated too long—a week ago last Thursday to be exact.

Who knows why it took me so long to be converted, except I'm your average housewife who is a product of the 1950s. And as my liberated neighbor, Wanda, pointed out, those were insufferable times for women. We ate frozen waffles, bought store-bought Christmas cards, painted by numbers and covered our furniture with Con-Tac. Aprons were nothing more than a piece of concrete at the end of the driveway.

But as Wanda pointed out a week ago last Thursday, "You can't go on living your life vicariously through Sara Lee and Col. Sanders. You're a person and a creative one at that. You have to create a role for yourself, one that you can be proud of. Aren't you tired of being a sex object?"

(Would you excuse me a moment? I think my ceramic Madonna is burning in the kiln.)

Where was I? Oh yes, creating a role for myself. Wanda said I'd have to get into knitting needles and needlepoint as a way of expression. Personally, I have always felt if the Good Lord had meant for needles to be invented, he would never have given us bare feet, but it did prove to be an extension of me I had never known. I crocheted three chignon caps and when my hair grows out I'll have the warmest chignon in town.

(Hang on, I think my homemade yogurt is ready to take out of the warmer.)

Wanda was the first to help me grind flour in preparation for my first loaf of home-baked bread. It not only broadened my world, but you wouldn't believe what it did for my hips.

(Oh, good grief. You know what I smelled? It wasn't the Madonna in the kiln, it was the wax for the Batik wall hanging I'm making. I guess it's like tie die—you ruin a lot of stuff before you become fulfilled.)

Wanda called yesterday just as I was pouring the candle wax into a milk carton. "Just checking on you," she laughed. "According to our time schedule, you have a job interview for this afternoon, a course in auto mechanics this evening, you picket a beauty pageant tomorrow morning and strip the paint off your dresser and start your organic gardening tomorrow afternoon."

I'm glad Wanda called. Sometimes, I get very morose remembering how I used to be when I was a pampered, indulged sex object. (Copyright, 1974)

Ann Landers

He'd cherish a wild tie

Dear Ann Landers: I am 55 years old and have been married for 30 years. I have given my wife 33 birthday gifts, 30 anniversary presents, 28 Mother's Day gifts, and an uncounted number of "just because I love you" gifts. My wife has never given me a gift of any kind.

This woman is wonderful, devoted, kind and gentle. I love her dearly. She has told me every Christmas when she opens her gifts from me and the children, that men do not attach any importance to gifts, which is why she has never bought me anything and never will.

We have a joint checking account and she carries charge plates for at least seven stores. I don't need anything except the pleasure of receiving a gift from her. I would cherish the wildest, most hideous necktie ever made, and I'd wear it with pride if my wife bought it for me.

Call me childish if you like, but this is the way I feel. Can you find room in your column for my letter? It may help educate other wives who think as she does. I could never bring myself to tell her how I feel and I'm too embarrassed to sign my name. Just call me—Gift-Rapped

Dear Rapped: Any man who would harbor a secret complaint for 30 years must love his hair shirt.

I suggest that you hand your wife this column and tell her you wrote the letter. I hope she will then go out and buy you the wildest, most hideous necktie ever made.

When you want to locate a key card, it may help to glance winningly at an opponent and murmur, "A beautiful girl like you really ought to have the king of clubs." This won't help if your wife is your partner or if both opponents happen to be tough curmudgeons of the male persuasion. Logic may then work better than flattery.

East won the first trick with the king of diamonds and returned a trump. South drew trumps with the ace and queen of diamonds and returned a trump. South drew trumps with the ace and queen and then wondered whether to lead a heart or a club from dummy.

Since East was a rather attractive young lady, South tried the winning glance and the murmur. East batted her eyelashes and simpered, whereupon South led a low club from dummy.

Alas — women were ever deceivers.

The queen of clubs lost to the king, and back came a club. Now South was sure to lose two clubs, a heart, and a diamond. Down one.

LOGIC WORKS

Now try logic. Assume that East has one of the missing kings. If you try clubs first and your guess is wrong, you may go down.

Think of trying the hearts first. If East has the king of hearts, your guess will be right, and you will make the game easily.

Next suppose the worst. You lead a low heart from dummy and it turns out that you have guessed wrong for West captures your queen with the king of hearts. You are still in good shape since you can still get back to dummy and lead a club toward the queen.

If you try hearts first, you are safe no matter which king East has. If you try clubs first, you may go down. The brain is mightier than the simper.

DAILY QUESTION

ANSWER: Bid three spades. A jump to four spades would show not more than 9 points in high cards. In this case you have 10 of the juiciest possible points — two aces and the queen of trumps. You might easily miss a cold slam by making the shutout bid of four spades.

Kimberly-Clark still state's biggest

For the third straight year, Kimberly-Clark Corp., Neenah, ranked first among the publicly held companies headquartered or incorporated in Wisconsin. Its sales again topped the $1 billion mark in 1973.

The only other firm to top that mark was Allis-Chalmers Corp., Milwaukee-based firm with Appleton divisions, the second ranking corporation in the Investor magazine listing.

These were among 18 firms with headquarters or divisions in the Fox Cities to Fond du Lac area which were ranked in Investor's Top 100 firms.

Other Fox Valley-based firms ranked were George Banta Co., Inc., Menasha; Bergstrom Paper Co., Neenah; Giddings & Lewis, Inc., Fond du Lac; FWD Corp., Clintonville; Oshkosh Truck Corp., Oshkosh; Presto Products, Inc., Appleton; Post Corporation, Appleton, and Oshkosh B'Gosh, Inc., Oshkosh.

Wisconsin firms with divisions or operations in the Fox Cities to Fond du Lac area were The Trane Co., La Crosse; Koehring Co., Milwaukee; Consolidated Papers, Inc., Wisconsin Rapids; Nino's Inc., Milwaukee; Godfrey Co., Waukesha; North Central Airlines, Minneapolis; Gateway Transportation, Inc., La Crosse; Mirro Aluminum Co., Manitowoc, and The Marcus Corp., Milwaukee.

Post Corporation was second among the 10 firms with the highest return on sales. It has a return of 11 per cent while Consolidated Papers was 10th with 7.67 per cent. Fort Howard Paper Co., Green Bay, was top with 11.89.

Oshkosh Truck was sixth in highest changes in income with a 144.32 per cent increase while Consolidated was 10th again with a 107.83 per cent hike.

Bergstrom Paper was second among the 10 topping the changes in sales, being up 81.53 per cent.

"1972 was a great year for Wisconsin's top 190 business firms, but 1973, judging by the figures at least, was an even better one," Investor reported.

Combined sales climbed to $13.9 billion, an increase of nearly 17 per cent, while profits rose from $367 million to $611 million, a 65 per cent gain, the magazine reported.

Investor's annual tabulation, ranking publicly-held manufacturing and nonfinancial service organizations, features comparative ratings in four separate financial categories: Net sales, net income, total assets and stockholders' equity.

The survey showed that 85 firms increased their margins in 1972 while 97 of the 100 did in 1973.

Panel to view zoning impact on W. College

BY DON CASTONIA

Post-Crescent staff writer

Requests for rezonings along W. College Avenue west of U.S. 41 will be looked at from the point of their impact on the future development of the entire strip, as well as on their individual merits.

The Outagamie County zoning committee informally took this stance Monday after public hearings on two rezoning requests, a hearing on a planned unit development and discussion with Town of Grand Chute Chairman Ira Livingston.

As part of its look into that area, the committee agreed to ask for a joint meeting with officials from both Grand Chute and Greenville with a key focus on future sanitary sewer service for the area.

Grand Chute and Greenville border at Mayflower Drive and development problems involve both towns.

Doehring Dodge of Appleton, Inc. is seeking to rezone 4.5 acres of land from agriculture to commercial on the south side of W. College Avenue, about a quarter mile west of Casaloma Drive.

And, Long Real Estate is seeking a rezoning of a strip one-half mile long on both sides of College Avenue east from Mayflower Drive. Long wants the south side, a strip 250 feet deep involving 15.5 acres, zoned to multiple family, and the north side, a strip 550 feet deep containing 36.6 acres, zoned to commercial.

Residents in the area objected to both rezonings and the committee has deferred decisions pending further study into the overall development plan for W. College.

The committee did, however, give preliminary approval to Tom Long's planned unit development for his proposed restaurant across College Avenue just west of Communications Drive. Final approval will hinge on the county board approving leasing of air rights over the avenue and the availability of sewers. The property is now zoned for commercial use.

County Planner Robert Stadel said the restaurant proposal "was not inconsistent with general planning principles," but he wanted to defer specific comments until more details of the plan are developed.

Under a planned unit development, building design must be approved by the county and any changes from the original proposal must also be approved before being made.

Long admitted that availability of sanitary sewer was the "crucial" item in the building plans. He said he planned to petition the Town of Greenville to seek service from Grand Chute.

Supv. Joseph Kasperek, zoning committee chairman, noted that if Grand Chute extended sewers out College Avenue "this land will be forced to develop."

Long indicated that was the primary reason he was asking for rezoning of the half-mile strip east of Mayflower Drive. "We have no immediate plans," he said. But he noted, if sewer is extended he has a half-mile of assessments to pay. "We want to know what we can use the property for," he said.

Livingston, who met separately with the committee after the hearings, said the state is putting pressure on the town to form a regional sewage district with Greenville and the Town of Menasha and that earliest estimates for such a system are 1980.

The town is also being pressured to improve its present treatment plant and Livingston said the state is threatening not to approve adding any more customers to the utility district. He

New proposal likely on county garage

BY BILL KNUTSON

Post-Crescent staff writer

An Appleton man said Monday that he is not yet ready to deal with the Outagamie County Highway Committee on a highway department garage at Black Creek that he and the county own.

Ralph Gertsch, co-owner of Osborn Manufacturing Co., Black Creek, hinted, however, that one of his proposals will be that the county sell him the disputed garage and then lease it from him.

Gertsch gave no indication what he would pay, although several months ago he offered $18,000 for the garage, which a year ago cost the county $25,000.

"You still want me to work on a purchase-lease deal? Will it be okay if I bring in something like this?" Gertsch asked. Committee Chairman George Kroes told him to go ahead.

Committee members seemed to have gone out of their way to avoid discussing the highway garage problem during Monday's all-day session.

A year ago the committee won county board approval of a package deal whereby an old county garage in Black Creek was sold to Outagamie Producers Co-Op, which needed to expand, and a replacement garage nearby was purchased from Black Creek Industries, Inc., for $25,000.

Some supervisors recently learned that a 1968 survey done for Osborn Manufacturing Co. showed that the company's south lot line bisects a 13-foot-deep north wing of the highway garage. The wing houses the garage's heating plant and lavatories.

But, more significantly, they also learned that the rest of their new garage is only seven feet south of Osborn Manufacturing's line. State building codes require that when such a structure is less than 10 feet from a lot line, there must be a fire wall on that side.

Estimates to construct a fire wall ranged to $16,000.

Further complications exist because sewer and water laterals run from the Osborn plant to the garage and there is a 10,000-gallon underground fuel tank which the county thought it owned but which Gertsch said is on Osborn property. Estimated value of the tank is $4,000 or $5,000.

County Corp. Counsel William Schuh said last week he was aware of the boundary line problem when the highway department proposed buying the property.

Kroes and another committeeman, Supv. Bernard Tillman of Grand Chute, said word never got to the committee.

Supv. Eugene Kloes of Appleton, another committeeman, was critical of what he saw as Schuh's laxity in protecting the county's interest in the transaction, but he was sure that Schuh had informed the committee about the boundary line issue.

Gertsch met with the highway committee a week ago and was expected to bring in a proposal Monday afternoon.

"This thing is too involved. I need more time," he said.

Kroes said his highway committee also needs more time. "We should have a survey made to see what belongs to us and what belongs to your corporation." He said he passed that advice to Schuh.

The county apparently relied on the 1968 plat of survey map prepared for Osborn Manufacturing Co. when it took part in the transaction.

Kroes estimated the county needs a couple more weeks. "I don't like to do something that doesn't benefit both of us," he told Gertsch.

Gertsch reminded him that the fuel tank also presents a problem, but he said he wasn't concerned over the sewer and water lines that run across Osborn's property.

Kroes said he wanted to talk to the Black Creek village board about the sewer and water problem.

The entire discussion on the boundary line issue at Monday's meeting took about five minutes. Kloes tried to get discussion started during the morning, but found no takers.

Kloes said after the meeting that committeemen had said they did not want to openly debate the garage issue yet. It was a topic of lunch table discussion, however, he said.

Shredder control still unresolved

Once again the Outagamie County Highway Committee has wrestled to a draw over who's going to control operation of the solid waste shredder.

County Board Chairman Eugene Higgin, expressing frustration over lack of agreement on who will take over the shredder, which is expected to be put to a test next week, said today he has asked for what he hopes will be a resolving session with the highway committee next Monday morning.

"It just can't wait any longer," Higgin remarked.

A motion by Supv. Eugene Kloes of Appleton never got to a vote in the highway committee Monday afternoon.

Kloes repeated a motion made earlier this month that operation of the shredder be put under the highway committee until the November county budget session and that at least three more highway department employees be hired to handle the job.

The program would be reviewed in November, under Kloes' proposal, at which time it could be decided if operation should remain with the highway department and if more or fewer employees are needed.

Kloes' identical proposal, made recently at a joint meeting of the highway, personnel and zoning committees, lost, 8-4. All members of the zoning committee and two each from the other two committees opposed the plan.

Supv. George Kroes, highway committee chairman, said Monday that he wanted some assurance from highway commissioner Clarence Brownson that he would responsibly accept control over operation of the shredder if it were decided to give it to the highway department.

"He kind of let us down last week," Kroes said of Brownson, who has been less than enthusiastic over Kloes' proposal.

"If that's the case, let's go ahead with hiring an engineer," Kloes snapped.

Kloes has urged that an engineer be hired and groomed as a possible successor to Brownson, who is near retirement age.

The county had an engineer, hired under the old Emergency Employment Act, but he quit early this year to take a job with the state Division of Highways.

Other committeemen informed Kloes they want to "go slow" on the engineer proposal.

Brownson echoed his hesitancy about

Tests to start on shredder

Testing of the Outagamie County solid waste shredder with refuse should start in less than ten days, according to Kenneth Hartz, head of Allis-Chalmers solid waste systems.

Hartz said all major components of the shredder plant are in place and electrical testing of components has started. Most of the motors have been checked out, he said.

Workmen were drawing into place today the high conveyor that will carry the shredded waste from the hammermills to the magnetic separator and loading conveyors for the compactor trucks. Final installation work also was being performed on the magnetic separator which will remove ferrous metals from the shredded waste for recovery and sale.

When in full operation, the shredder plant is expected to handle up to 400 tons of refuse per day. Initially, about half of that amount is anticipated from Appleton.

Bank, firm to cosponsor CATV effort

The Outagamie Bank and Fox Cities Communications are ready to join together to sponsor the broadcast of Appleton City Council meetings over local cable television.

Thomas Engel, general manager for Fox Cities, said today that the two had agreed to sponsor the program jointly and will present the idea to aldermen at their Aug. 7 meeting.

If the council gives the go ahead, broadcasts could begin as early as the second meeting (Aug. 21) of the month.

Engel said the venture was a public service effort on the part of both his firm and the bank.

The meetings would be broadcast over channel 8, Engel said, which is the weather station for the local CATV franchise.

Televising would come the day after the Wednesday sessions, probably around 6 p.m. so the entire family could watch, Engel said.

Engel and a production expert from the veteran Beloit operation of American Television & Communications, Inc., Denver, will outline the proposal to aldermen at their session next week.

If approval is given, work will begin immediately to determine lighting, sound and other requirements for bringing Appleton residents their officials in the flesh.

$1 million sewer interceptor line 60 pct. completed

NEENAH — Considerable progress is reported in construction of the $1 million slough interceptor sewer and pumping station, which will extend adequate sewer service to the far south and west sides of the city.

Construction of the pumping station on Main Street at the slough began after issuance of a building permit last week. Fluor Bros. Construction Co. of Oshkosh is building the 27 by 14 foot concrete structure. With pumping equipment, the station was bid at $291,977. That will connect with the slough interceptor sewer, which is being constructed at a bid cost of $708,610.

According to a public works construction progress report issued by Wayne Bryan, director of public works, the slough interceptor is 60 per cent completed, with work proceeding to the south. The interceptor sewer will follow the slough from the pump station at Little Lake Butte des Morts to Cecil Street at the south. Another line of it will connect the pump station to the sewerage commission's interceptor, north of the intersection of Main and Union streets.

At the south end, the interceptor will connect with an existing 42-inch sewer which runs from Breezewood Lane to Cecil Street. The interceptor will eliminate several discharge points along the slough.

OSHA hearing set in Madison

OSHKOSH — Rep. William A. Steiger, R-Oshkosh, announced that the Occupational Safety and Health Administration will hold public hearings on the proposed machine guarding farm regulations on Monday, Aug. 26, in Madison.

According to Steiger, OSHA will open for discussion virtually all major points of contention in the controversial standards. This includes viability of requiring an audible warning system on power driven parts that continue in motion after the power has been disengaged, and whether the guarding suggesting in the regulations should be retro-fitted for installation on new equipment.

"There is absolutely no doubt," Steiger said "that the requirement to retro-fit all existing farm equipment has some onerous implications. The most factor could be staggering and most farmers simply can't be expected to design guarding, from scratch, and on a uniform basis, that the manufacturer did not provide in the first place."

The OSHA advisory committee originally recommended that only new farm equipment be the subject of more stringent shielding requirements.

"I know we're getting into harvest time," Steiger said. "But I do hope all Wisconsin farmers and agri-businessmen will take a moment to consider the potential ramifications these standards could bring about and give serious thought to speaking up in Madison on Aug. 26."

The Sheraton Inn, 706 Nolen Drive, Madison, will be the hearing site.

Anyone interested in attending the hearing is asked to notify J. Goodell, OSHA, Room 200, 1726 M Street, NW, US Department of Labor, Washington, DC 20210, before Aug. 16.

The notice should include the individual's name and address, whether he is representing himself or an organization, the areas to be discussed, approximate time needed by the individual, and a short statement of the position to be taken.

Future construction is expected to extend the pipeline from Breezewood Lane south to Bergstrom Paper Co. and Menasha Corp. at the extreme edge of the city.

Other sewer construction progress in Neenah include the Green Bay Road storm sewer which is completed except for repaving the roadway, and the Union Street storm sewer and sanitary sewer repairs, which Bryan said are "substantially completed."

Street construction is also progressing well. Work on Haylett, Oak and Grove streets has been completed. Paving has begun on Maple Street from Peckham to Edgewood, and on Gay Drive from Gillingham to Tullar Road.

Bids were opened last week for concrete paving of Coolidge, Helen and Dieckhoff streets, and for resurfacing of Congress Street and Winneconne and Wisconsin avenues.

Central Paving Corp. of Neenah was the only bidder for the concrete paving work. The street and public works committee has recommended that the City Council accept its low bid of $10,527 for the paving work on Coolidge, Helen and Dieckhoff streets, and the bid of $46,375 for resurfacing of Congress Street and Winneconne and Wisconsin avenues. The two avenue projects will be from the railroad tracks east to Commercial Street.

Bids for curb and gutter construction, sidewalk replacement and other related work on the same streets and avenues were received from two firms. The street and public works committee is recommending that the council accept the low bid of $21,668 from Bloy Construction Co. of Appleton. The other bid was $24,024 from Sommers Construction Co.

Work on the street projects should get underway within 10 days after awarding of contracts, which is expected to come at the Aug. 7 City Council meeting.

Another contract recommended for approval after the bid was opened last week is for the traffic signal and its installation at the Harrison-Winneconne intersection. The low bid of $11,900 was received from Keil-Werner Electric Co.

A $141,000 state project for widening of Winneconne Avenue is also under contract, and work should begin soon.

Bids for construction of sidewalks on Tullar Road, Stanley Street, Green Bay Road and Winneconne Avenue will be opened on Aug. 1.

Courts

A pretrial conference was set for Monday for George Pomeroy, 20, 1704 Florence St., Kaukauna, charged with four traffic counts. Pomeroy entered pleas of not guilty before Outagamie County Court Branch 2 Judge Nick F. Schaefer Monday.

Pomeroy is charged with failing to stop for a stop sign, speeding over 100 miles per hour in a 55 m.p.h. zone, fleeing a police officer and eluding a police officer.

All charges relate to a 3 a.m. Monday incident, which began at the intersection of Telulah Street and College Avenue in Appleton and ended at the intersection of county trunks E and N.

Bail was set at $800 signature bond.

Sandra R. Quade, 21, 843½ W. College Ave., Appleton, was fined $50 Monday in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 by Judge Nick F. Schaefer for destruction of property. She pleaded guilty.

Quade was arrested July 18 after she stopped police and told them she broke a window with her fist at a fish store on College Avenue.

The recipient is a member of Troop 18, Richmond School. He received it at special ceremonies at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, with the Rev. H. P. Hilgendorf officiating. (Post-Crescent photo)

Home for boys to stay open after agreement

Outagamie County and Donald Peeters have reached an agreement over continued operation of a group home for boys north of Shiocton.

Under terms of a contract that will go to Corp. Counsel William Schuh for drafting, the county will pay Peeters $675 per month for five years, with a renewal option and a right of first refusal on purchase.

The county also will place $75 per month into a special equipment and furnishings replacement and maintenance account in which the balance will be divided at the end of the lease period.

According to County Welfare Director James Stampp, the Peeterses will continue as group home "parents" until replacements are found.

A replacement family had been under consideration, Stampp said, but they changed their mind. New parents

Town sanitary unit OKs $650,000 bonds

TOWN OF MENASHA — The sanitary district commission Monday night adopted a resolution calling for the sale of $650,000 in general obligation bonds to help free itself from the financial mess involving the town's sewer and water departments.

The vote of the commission at a special session that was not publicly announced was 3 to 0. The meeting was held at the town hall.

Harry Kivell, who the commission recently retained as its financial consultant, gave detailed breakdowns for the water and sewer departments individually and a corresponding bonding program designed to generate $1.2 million in cash.

In a related matter, the commission heard an explanation from Kivell but declined to take action until its next regular meeting on a proposed ordinance governing the sale of $525,000 in revenue bonds, another leg of the financial program.

"I'm trying to minimize your borrowing," Kivell told commissioners.

The commission July 11 adopted an initial resolution calling for the sale of the general obligation bonds. Monday night's action formally set the various procedures for the actual sale of the bonds into motion. Kivell explained that although market conditions, particularly interest rates, had changed rapidly in recent weeks he could probably find a willing buyer for the bonds.

According to Kivell's breakdown, the net cash need for the water department is $666,880 and for the sewer department, $546,920, for a total cash need at this time of $1,213,800.

The $1.2 million deficit was disclosed earlier this month when the commission, which inherited the financial woes from an earlier panel, head a description of the financial situation from Kivell.

On Monday night commissioner Franz Vaurio said the district's "gamble" was beginning to pay off and that there has been a healthy rise in water sales to industry.

The district's financial woes stem from a variety of factors including a leaky west side sewer and water system, the lack of a mandatory hookup

Water shortage caused by long-running toilet

COPAN, Okla. (AP) — A stuck toilet dumped thousands of gallons of water into the sewer mains requiring shipments by two tank trucks to replenish the town's water supply.

City Manager Darrel Gaut ordered the water truck shuttle to nearby Bartlesville Tuesday after a school toilet was found stuck and pouring thousands of gallons of water down the sewer.

"We figure that it flushed about 40,000 gallons into the sewer before it was stopped," said Judy McMurtrey, clerk and treasurer of the northeastern Oklahoma town of about 700. She said it was not known how long the toilet had been running. School ended in May.

"It will take us a week to catch up on what we lost through the toilet," Gaut said.

Minister receives heroism award

GREEN BAY — The Rev. M. K. Staskal of New London was among nine recipients of the Fort Howard Paper Foundation's Award of Valor at a presentation here Monday night.

Foundation president John Cofrin presented engraved plaques and checks for $1,000 to Staskal, Mrs. Wayne Truttmann, Lt. Donald Van Straten, Patrick Mellen, all of Green Bay; Donald Opicka, Casco; Thomas Wudke, Little Suamico; Phillip Armstrong and Donald Galleke, Marinette; and Nancy Schroeder of Sturgeon Bay.

Staskal earned the award when he rescued Henry Zeller from the Wolf River on Jan. 25, 1974. Staskal had taken his sons ice fishing. He heard a call for help and found that Zeller had fallen through the ice farther down the river. Staskal, a nonswimmer, crossed the river toward Zeller, but broke through. However, he was able to pull himself out and reach Zeller with his ice chisel. As he attempted to pull Zeller from the freezing water, he again broke through the ice but was able to complete the rescue and help Zeller to shore.

Mrs. Truttmann accepted the award for her husband, who was killed on Dec. 20, 1973, in a shoot-out in the Brown County Safety Building Sallyport. Van Straten was wounded in the incident.

Opicka waded through chest-deep water in the flood-swollen Kewaunee River on May 28, 1973, to throw a rope to five people stranded in tree branches offshore.

Wudke crawled through heavy smoke and fire to rescue his unconscious neighbor, Mrs. Phyllis Rost, from her burning mobile home on Feb. 15, 1974.

Mellen, 13, rescued Susan Garriet, 5, after she had fallen into the icy water of Duck Creek on March 16, 1974.

Armstrong rescued one of two girls who had fallen through the ice in the Menominee River near the Koss Interstate Bridge by tying a rope to himself and to the back of his truck and walking out across the ice.

Mrs. Schroeder saved her 2-year-old son on April 18, 1974, after she found him floating face down in the spring-fed pond near their home. She swam out to retrieve him and then gave mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Galleke, 15, rescued Mitchell Walton, 11, from the swift-flowing Menominee River in Marinette by lying on a concrete area with a friend holding his feet. He lunged over the side for Walton's outstretched hand as the current carried the boy past.

The award of valor program covers acts of heroism in Brown, Marinette, Oconto, Menominee, Outagamie, Calumet, Shawano, Manitowish, Kewaunee and Door counties. Nominations for the award are made through local fire departments or law enforcement officials or directed to the award of valor committee chairman, Ben Laird, P.O. Box 36, Green Bay, Wis. 54305.

Thief mails back loot to wealthy N. J. mayor

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Almost all of the $12,000 loot, including an $8,500 diamond bracelet taken in the burglary of the home of Atlantic City's Mayor Joseph F. Bradley Jr. has been returned by mail.

"I couldn't believe it," said millionaire Bradley on Tuesday after the package was delivered by a postman to the city hall office.

The burglar did not return several hundred dollars in cash and two clocks taken in the July 13 break-in.

Builders' group pushes for new-house warranties

BY ARTHUR ROWSE

WASHINGTON — If you want assurance that all claims made for a new house are true, you should know "HOW."

"HOW" is an acronym for Home Owners Warranty Program, a flourishing child of the National Association of Home Builders, which represents most of the home construction industry in this country.

Although officially launched only a few weeks ago, HOW already has been accepted by 77 builders' associations in 24 states and is growing rapidly in popularity in the rest of the nation.

Warranties are not yet available but will be soon now that an insurance firm, American Bankers Co. of Miami, Fla., has been selected to back the program financially.

Here's how "HOW" works: It sets up a system of registering builders, monitoring their performances, resolving any builder-buyer disputes and issuing 10-year warranties to buyers of new houses.

Builders must meet certain standards of technical competence, financial soundness and ethical practices. And they must pay for the program on the basis of their sales. There is no charge to the buyer, although the fees may be included in the selling price of the house.

If a builder goes out of business or defaults on his obligations in the first two years, HOW assumes the responsibilities of the warranty. If a problem arises during the next eight years, the insurance company has the responsibility.

Major structural defects are covered throughout the 10 years. During the first year, coverage also extends to faulty workmanship and defective materials.

During the first two years, coverage also extends to installation of plumbing, heating, electrical and cooling systems.

In addition, a warranty can be transferred if a house changes ownership during the 10-year period.

Excluded from warranty coverage are loss or damage not reported within the required time, defective design or materials supplied by purchasers, secondary damage, such as personal injury caused by defects, normal wear and tear, shrinkage and dampness, improper maintenance, landscaping and insect damage or damage covered by other insurance policies.

The system of settling disputes relies on the American Arbitration Association. But first, the buyer must submit his complaint to the local HOW Council for investigation and possible settlement.

If no agreement is reached, the case can then be taken to arbitration by either party for a $75 fee. Both parties must agree to be bound by whatever decision is made.

But the arbitration system does not preclude a buyer from filing a legal suit. It aims to avoid such suits by offering a quicker, more responsive system.

Nearly half of all new-house builders already offer written warranties of various types (not part of HOW), and many other builders offer oral commitments to repair major defects. The HOW program simply seeks to formalize and extend warranties to more people.

For free information about HOW, including the names of builder groups in the program, contact Mary Jo Douds, HOW information officer, 15th and M streets N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005.

Courts

A pretrial conference was set for Sept. 30 for Stephan E. Turk, 17, 212 S. Lincoln St., Kimberly.

Turk appeared Monday in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 before Judge Nick F. Schaefer on a charge of racing on a highway. He was arrested near the 100 and 200 blocks of W. College Avenue on July 7.

Thomas E. Sample, 18, 830 N. Bennett St., Appleton, forfeited a $100 bond Monday to Outagamie County Court Branch 2. Sample was charged with reckless driving.

He was arrested at 10:30 p.m. July 10 near the 100 block of S. State Street, after being followed by police from the 400 block of N. Richmond Street.

Diane J. Van Bostel, 16, 921 Jefferson St., Little Chute, was ordered Monday to attend Traffic Safety School by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

She was arrested in connection with a July 12 hit-and-run accident in the parking ramp in the 100 block of N. Division Street in Appleton. She pleaded no contest.

The case was continued to Dec. 20. Successful completion of the school could bring a reduction in the fine.

Bicycle safety

The rules of the road and bicycle safety go hand in hand these days for young riders in the Appleton area, who are becoming more and more mobile on cycles of a variety of sizes and shapes. The Appleton Police Department's concern about their youngest drivers was demonstrated Monday when patrolman Dan Turbeck explained some of the finer points of bicycle safety to Appleton Lions and their children. From left, Richard Clark, president, watched while Randi Madisen and Jenny Jones learned about bike safety. (Post-Crescent photo)

Earnings, expansion plans reported by Kimberly-Clark

TERRACE BAY, Ontario — Kimberly-Clark Corp. today reported second-quarter 1974 earnings of $29.9 million or $1.29 a share compared to $19.1 million or 82 cents per share for the comparable period in 1973. First half net income for the year was $59.2 million of $2.55 per share compared to $40.5 million of $1.74 per share, before an extraordinary item, for the same period last year.

Second-quarter sales were $360 million compared to $295 million during the period in 1973. First-half sales were $725 million compared to $589 million a year ago.

Darwin E. Smith, chairman and chief executive officer, said second-quarter and first-half earnings of the company's U. S. consumer and service products and U. S. paper products were better than for the same periods last year. He said operations outside the U. S. continued to be significantly better, with about half of the improvement coming from the newsprint and pulp business of Canadian subsidiaries. Second-quarter earnings of U. S. forest products declined, as anticipated, from the prior year, Smith noted.

"Most of our domestic product prices during the second quarter were restricted by voluntary price commitments made to the Cost of Living Council in mid-March. Allowable price increases were put into effect, but did not fully cover our higher costs for services and mater, especially pulp. As voluntary price commitments expire, we expect to cover increasing costs with price increases.

"Pulp cost increases to domestic operations have already been reflected in net income and have not generated so-called inventory profits. We have consistently valued that pulp on a last-in, first-out basis," Smith said.

At a meeting here today the board of directors approved in principle a $200 million program for the expansion and modernization of the Kimberly-Clark of Canada, Ltd., Terrace Bay pulp mill. The program is the largest single capital project in company history and, when completed in late 1977, will increase bleached kraft pulp production capacity at that location from 450 to 1,250 tons per day.

The company said the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources has granted Kimberly-Clark of Canada, Ltd., a license to cut Crown timber on 4,500 square miles of additional lands adjoining those previously licensed, bringing the total area supporting the mill's wood requirements to about 12,000 square miles.

The board of directors also declared a regular quarterly dividend of 36 cents a share, payable Oct. 2, 1974, to shareholders of record Sept. 6, 1974.

entering the shredder operation again Monday.

"Will you take the responsibility?" Kroes asked him.

"It's a lot of added work," Brownson replied. "It depends on what kind of guy you get to run it."

The personnel committee has advertised to hire an operator-manager for the shredder and could act on a hiring tonight.

Brownson also said he did not want to be made "the fall guy."

Three people aren't going to be able to handle operation of the shredder after it is put into full-time use, Brownson speculated.

Higgins said he, Supv. Russell DeLaHunt of Kaukauna and Supv. Joseph Kasperek of rural Black Creek, zoning committee chairman, expect to be at next Monday's highway committee session on the shredder.

W. College . . .

also noted that two years ago the town had an estimate of $2.2 million to extend its sanitary sewer interceptor from Spencer Street and Casaloma Drive to Mayflower and College.

"Which comes first?" Supv. James Schuette asked. "The sewer or the development?" Livingston agreed that it was almost an unanswerable question.

While almost ruling out the possibility of a 30-inch main, he did not rule out the possibility of a temporary 8-inch line that could pick up the proposed restaurant, the county airport and Wisconsin Wire Works.

The airport has its own package treatment plant which is not functioning properly and the state Department of Natural Resources has suggested the county connect into a municipal system. Wisconsin Wire Works, located on the corner of College Avenue and Two Mile Road, has a septic system which also is not functioning properly.

Stadel had recommended to the committee against the rezoning for Doehring Dodge and suggested a lower density zoning for the Long rezoning proposal.

Of the Doehring site, Stadel noted the land use plan called for residential development of the area. It was, he said, "Inconsistent with good planning to continue the hodge-podge development west of U.S. 41."

Because of setback and frontage road requirements, Stadel said the area requested for multi-family by Long would be better for single-family or duplex development.

He noted the strip was only 250 feet deep and there is a 51-foot setback requirement from College Avenue and that another 66 feet would be needed for the frontage road, leaving only 129 feet for lot depth.

On the north side of College, he said that while the land use plan called for commercial development, he felt rezoning now was "premature" in view of existing commercial land still available.

Supv. Russell DeLaHunt agreed that the county should pay closer attention to the land use plan, which was prepared by the old Fox Valley Council of Governments in 1969 and adopted by Grand Chute.

In addition to the sewage question, the issue of the location of service roads from Two Mile Road to Casaloma Drive will be discussed with the Greenville and Grand Chute officials.

just hired and given the keys to the airplane.

Even captains with 25 years of flight experience are retrained on a regular basis. We have 9 classrooms and over half a million dollars worth of equipment that is used to train and retrain pilots. A monthly publication of new ideas is published for pilots... with the pilots making day-to-day contributions and suggestions. At North Central we adopt the philosophy that nobody ever learns everything there is to know about flying.

Aircraft care and maintenance

As a check on aircraft readiness, our pilots go through an extensive pre-flight checklist before every flight. Over 163 detailed procedures are involved. And if any one of these isn't passed to the pilot's satisfaction, the aircraft never leaves the ground. To be sure your DC-9 is ready, it receives a line inspection every day...plus a series of more thorough inspections at regular intervals. In addition, each aircraft component has an operating hour limit and must be removed and replaced with a new or overhauled component when that limit is reached...even though it may be operating perfectly!

'Odd Couple' success for Attic Theater

BY BOB LOWE
Post-Crescent staff writer

Gregory J. Schrimpf and Carl H. Wenzel aren't exactly Tony Randall and Jack Klugman. But they were able to imbue their characters (Felix Ungar and Oscar Madison, respectively) with enough credibility to make "The Odd Couple," which opened Saturday at the Attic Theater, one of the best offerings of the summer theater thus far.

Considering the exposure that this Neil Simon comedy has received over the last few years, this was no small accomplishment. Not only is it one of the most successful and long-running plays ever staged on Broadway, but it has also been adapted for a television series starring Randall and Klugman.

The title itself is suggestive of the theme.

The story revolves around two divorced men who share an apartment. Felix Ungar is fastidious to the point of being neurotic; Oscar Madison is compulsively sloppy and he dramatizes it by wearing a sweatshirt with the slogan "To Hell With Housework."

They try to work out a living arrangement but the experiment is notably unsuccessful. Ungar cannot bear to see ashes on the rug or dishes in the sink. His apron string is still attached to his estranged wife. Besides, he is a superb cook.

All of this is driving Madison up a wall. He likes to sleep around with his card playing cronies, is never up to date with his alimony payment, loves to see the apartment in a state of disarray and can't stand rigidity.

The supporting players gave the play an incredible sense of realism. H. P. Dixon as the beer-bellied, cigar-smoking cop almost overshadowed the principals, especially in the early scenes. There was something about his portrayal as Madison's card playing partner that was tremendously genuine.

Vinnie (Urban P. Van Susteren) and Gwendolyn and Cecily Pigeon (Doreen Brewer and Jane Gage) also deserve honorable mention. The former is a member of the poker crew. Nothing especially significant about his role. He just came across convincingly.

The latter two played the part of two coquettish British girls who live upstairs. Although a little gushy, they filled the bill perfectly. Their accents were great.

Rounding out the cast are K.K. "Tim" DuVall, Jr. as Speed and John J. Yankoski as Roy. A little bit more forcefulness, guys.

What makes the play such a delight are the terrific one liners ("There are hundreds of thousands of divorces each year. There must be something good about it.") and the excellent timing and pace that was co-ordinated by director Mark Malinauskas.

The scenic arrangements and lightning was as authentic as you could expect for the stage. Everything from the swing door kitchen to the flushing of a toilet was effectively simulated. James H. Gage, take a bow.

Wenzel and Schrimpf complemented each other well. The latter appeared to be somewhat strained and stiff but then again it was hard to separate these traits from those in the sulking character he portrayed.

Wenzel became more forceful toward the end. At one point during the early stages he appeared to have been overshadowed by the supporting players but he finally came through triumphantly, especially in the last scene. (Take the wedding band off Carl. You are supposed to be divorced.)

The two-hour three act play will run through Aug. 10 at Lawrence University Music-Drama Center.

Lindbergh hospitalized

NEW YORK (AP) — Charles A. Lindbergh, 72, the aviator who became a world idol when he soloed across the Atlantic to Paris in 1927, has been in a hospital for a week. No reason for his hospitalization has been given.

A spokesman at Columbia Presbyterian Hospital reiterated today that Lindbergh was admitted last Wednesday, but gave no further information, at the direction of Lindbergh's physician, on the nature of the illness or Lindbergh's condition. The doctor was not identified.

Lindbergh's private secretary had said Monday that the aviator had a virus.

Professor pleads innocent in drug smuggling plot

NEW YORK (AP) — University of Wisconsin-Madison Prof. Marion R. Brown, charged with conspiring to smuggle $32.7 million worth of cocaine into the country, pleaded innocent in a federal court Monday and was released on his own recognizance.

Brown's attorney, Donald S. Eisenberg of Madison, moved for dismissal of the charge. His petition said a five count indictment against 18 persons in connection with the alleged plot charged Brown, 35, only with conspiracy and did not accuse him of overt acts.

Eisenberg said if the indictment against Brown is not dismissed, he will demand that the government detail its case against him in a bill of particulars.

Brown, an associate professor of agricultural journalism, is accused of conspiring to import narcotics to the U.S. from Chile. He was in Chile as a staff member of the UW Land Tenure Center from December, 1970, to July, 1973.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles E. Stewart Jr. freed Brown after assigning the case to another federal judge, Marvin E. Frankel. No trial date was set.

Gasoline production cut

NEW YORK (AP) — Major refiners are cutting back on gasoline production because high prices have driven gasoline demand down and inventories up, the American Petroleum Institute says.

API's weekly report of oil statistics showed on Monday that the industry refined a daily average of 6.81 million barrels of gasoline during the week ended July 19, compared with 6.88 million barrels a day refined during the similar period a year earlier.

Gasoline production has declined since the first part of this month, when an average of 6.89 million barrels was prepared per day. There are about 42 gallons in a barrel.

Meanwhile, during the week ended July 19, inventories of both gasoline and crude oil went up 9 per cent over the year-earlier figures.

Experts say the increase in available supplies and the tighter storage space prompted the refiners to trim their output — a move that could also keep the price from suddenly dropping.

"They just aren't able to sell all of their products," said Ivan Maple, an official of the pricing division in the Federal Energy Administration.

"If you can't sell it, what are you going to do with it."

Maple said major dealers were not taking all of their allocations and price wars have developed in several parts of the country.

Connally pledges to fight charges of bribery, conspiracy, perjury

WASHINGTON (AP) — John B. Connally, indicted for bribery, perjury and conspiracy, denies any guilt and says he will fight the charges.

The former Treasury secretary was indicted Monday by a Watergate grand jury, accused of taking two $5,000 bribes from milk producers and then conspiring to cover up the payment with perjured testimony.

"I deny again that I am guilty of any wrongdoing and I am confident that I will be completely vindicated of these charges," Connally said in a statement issued through his Houston law office.

"For months there have been leaks, rumors and speculation. The matter is now in the open, where it can be dealt with honestly and fairly."

Monday night, Connally told the Dallas Morning News that he was "heart-sick" over the indictment.

"We're going to keep fighting it," he said. "We're going to use every resource and we're going to win it. We are not giving up."

Connally said he wasn't surprised by the grand jury action, but he said he had kept thinking that it might not occur.

"I'm saddened of course," the three-time Texas governor said. "I've been engaged in many campaigns for many years, and there have never been any whispers or suspicions about my activities."

Connally is the fourth former member of President Nixon's Cabinet to be charged with a crime. He has hired noted criminal lawyer Edward Bennett Williams to run his defense.

The grand jury accused Connally of two counts of bribery, one count of conspiracy to obstruct justice and two counts of perjury. He faces a maximum of 19 years in jail and $50,000 in fines if convicted on all counts.

The grand jury accused Connally of taking two $5,000 payments from his friend, Jake Jacobsen, a Texas lawyer working for Associated Milk Producers, Inc., the nation's largest dairy-farmer cooperative.

The money allegedly was paid for Connally's help in getting President Nixon to raise federal milk price supports in March 1971. The first $5,000 was paid around May 14 and the second around Sept. 24, the indictment said.

Jacobsen also was indicted on a single bribery count, carrying a maximum penalty of two years in jail and a $10,000 fine. There have been reports that Jacobsen had struck a deal with the Watergate prosecution force, agreeing to plead guilty to a single bribery count provided the government would drop all other charges against him.

Jacobsen is scheduled for pleading Aug. 7, Connally for Aug. 9.

The indictment charges that Connally and Jacobsen conspired to cover up the alleged bribes after federal investigators began checking testimony by a former lobbyist for the milk producers, Bob A. Lilly, who said he gave Jacobsen $15,000 to give to Connally.

Jacobsen swore he drew only $10,000 from the milk producers, and that he offered it to Connally twice. Both Jacobsen and Connally testified that the money was offered not as a bribe, but as a fund from which Connally could make political donations to candidates of his choosing.

Both swore that Connally refused the money. Jacobsen testified that he put the cash in a bank vault and left it there 2 1/2 years. The indictment charged that this story is false.

Monday's indictment says Connally lied to the grand jury on two occasions.

It accused Connally of lying when he swore Nov. 14 that he had talked to Jacobsen only once in the previous three or four weeks, and that they talked not about the $10,000 but about a bank charter.

Connally told a somewhat different story April 11, saying he had spoken with Jacobsen three times before the first grand jury appearance. He said that during one of the talks Jacobsen mentioned that he had been subpoenaed to testify about the $10,000. The grand jury said Connally lied when he said that this was the first time Jacobsen mentioned the subpoena.

The grand jury said Connally and Jacobsen met or talked five times before Connally's first testimony.

Connally, 57, is head of one of the nation's largest law firms. He entered public life as a protégé and campaign manager for Lyndon B. Johnson, then a Texas congressman. Connally served as secretary of the Navy in President John F. Kennedy's administration, and later was elected governor of Texas. He was wounded seriously in the 1963 assassin's attack that killed Kennedy in Dallas.

Connally, the only Democrat in Nixon's Cabinet when he headed the Treasury Department, was considered one of Nixon's closest advisers. In mid-1972 he resigned to head "Democrats for Nixon" and Jacobsen was one of his chief assistants. In 1973 he switched

Prostitution laws blasted

CHICAGO (AP) — Laws against prostitution are blatantly discriminatory toward women, invade individual privacy and should be dropped from state books, a committee of the American Bar Association recommends.

The recommendation is in a report that calls for the adoption of a resolution which urges states to "repeal all laws which classify as criminal prostitution or solicitation by or on behalf of a prostitute."

The resolution is to be considered by the ABA's House of Delegates at its annual meeting in August. Approval of the resolution by the full House and the ABA's Board of Governors will provide guidance to state bars and other lobbying groups before state legislatures.

The committee says there is no reason for a state to outlaw "commercial sex."

"Whether a person chooses to engage in sexual intercourse for pure recreation, or in exchange for something of value, is a matter of individual choice, not for governmental interference," the report states. Decriminalization could lead to a reduction of crime associated with prostitution, it says.

Carole Bellows, a Chicago lawyer and vice chairman of the committee that approved the resolution, said the rise of the liberated woman, expanding notions about the right of privacy and a growing concern about so-called victimless crimes contributed to the committee's unanimous approval of the report at a meeting of its 20 members in May.

A primary reason for the committee's action was the discriminatory nature of statutes outlawing prostitution.

"In accordance with society's double standard of sexual morality, the woman who sells her body is punished criminally and stigmatized socially while her male customer, either by the explicit design of the statute or through a pattern of discriminatory enforcement, is left unscathed," the report states.

It says that in most states the law ignores the fact that male homosexuals can be prostitutes and "more importantly, that male customers, without whom prostitution would be impossible, are accomplices in this so-called criminal act."

'Odd Couple' success for Attic Theater

BY BOB LOWE
Post-Crescent staff writer

Gregory J. Schrimpf and Carl H. Wenzel aren't exactly Tony Randall and Jack Klugman. But they were able to imbue their characters (Felix Ungar and Oscar Madison, respectively) with enough credibility to make "The Odd Couple," which opened Saturday at the Attic Theater, one of the best offerings of the summer theater thus far.

Considering the exposure that this Neil Simon comedy has received over the last few years, this was no small accomplishment. Not only is it one of the most successful and long-running plays ever staged on Broadway, but it has also been adapted for a television series starring Randall and Klugman.

The title itself is suggestive of the theme.

The story revolves around two divorced men who share an apartment. Felix Ungar is fastidious to the point of being neurotic; Oscar Madison is compulsively sloppy and he dramatizes it by wearing a sweatshirt with the slogan "To Hell With Housework."

They try to work out a living arrangement but the experiment is notably unsuccessful. Ungar cannot bear to see ashes on the rug or dishes in the sink. His apron string is still attached to his estranged wife. Besides, he is a superb cook.

All of this is driving Madison up a wall. He likes to sloop around with his card playing cronies, is never up to date with his alimony payment, loves to see the apartment in a state of disarray and can't stand rigidity.

The supporting players gave the play an incredible sense of realism. H. P. Dixon as the beer-bellied, cigar-smoking cop almost overshadowed the principals, especially in the early scenes. There was something about his portrayal as Madison's card playing partner that was tremendously sincere. Vinnie (Urban P. Van Gusteren) and Gwendolyn and Cecily Pigeon (Doreen Brewer and Jane Gage) also deserve honorable mention. The former is a member of the poker crew. Nothing especially significant about his role. He just came across convincingly.

The latter two played the part of two coquettish British girls who live upstairs. Although a little gushy, they filled the bill perfectly. Their accents were great.

Rounding out the cast are K.K. "Tim" DuVall, Jr. as Speed and John J. Yankoski as Roy. A little bit more fancifulness, guys.

What makes the play such a delight are the terrific one liners ("There are hundreds of thousands of divorces each year. There must be something good about it.") and the excellent timing and pace that was co-ordinated by director Mark Malinauskas.

The scenic arrangements and lightning was as authentic as you could expect for the stage. Everything from the swing door kitchen to the flushing of a toilet was effectively simulated. James H. Gage, take a bow.

Wenzel and Schrimpf complemented each other well. The latter appeared to be somewhat strained and stiff but then again it was hard to separate these traits from those in the sulking character he portrayed.

Toward the end more forceful Wenzel became. At one point during the early stages he appeared to have been overshadowed by the supporting players but he finally came through triumphantly, especially in the last scene. (Take the wedding band off Carl. You are supposed to be divorced.)

The two-hour three act play will run through Aug. 10 at Lawrence University Music-Drama Center.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Grievance panel hears complaints about fees

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A specialist sent me a bill which seems to me to be grossly excessive. Kindly advise me where I could have it checked as to its appropriateness. — W.T.

Human greed being what it is, I can't deny that some medical bills are excessive.

But I am convinced that the majority of physicians want to give honest value for fees they receive, and want to build up a firm and honest relationship with patients.

I think most physicians — and include me, please — believe that every case of overcharging hurts the whole profession.

For that reason, most county medical societies have a grievance committee (the exact name may vary). The committee exists to listen to patients' complaints, and is not limited just to fees.

Where it is a question of fee, the committee listens to both sides. It is sometimes true that special procedures, tests or study of the literature may mount up to more work than the patient realizes. But the patient is entitled to know that.

It is important to you, the patient, as well as to us — the physicians — to reach a fair understanding. Sometimes adjustments in the fee are made after such hearings; sometimes not. But that is the place to go for adjustment, if it is warranted, and if not, an explanation.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Enclosed are 20 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for your booklet, "How to Control Emphysema." My husband has emphysema and I need to learn everything I can about it. — C.V.

I can't say that a booklet can tell you everything about emphysema, but I do think it will give you a basic understanding so you can do the best job possible for your husband, in conjunction with whatever your doctor can do for him. In spite of the known prevalence of emphysema, and its dangerous nature, too few people really understand it — and too few start doing something about it early enough.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How does a thyroid gland affect a person's weight? I am underweight and cannot gain, no matter what I eat. I would like to know if an overactive or underactive thyroid could be causing my trouble.

I am a man, 68, with a slight case of diabetes. I am on a diet of 2,000 calories a day, but I have lost 15 pounds in the past few months. — H.K.

The thyroid isn't normally a major factor in weight gain or loss, and we usually have to look elsewhere for the cause. In your case, it may be that your diet is not sufficient alone to handle your diabetic condition.

If an overactive thyroid was responsible, you would have other symptoms — nervousness, tremor, ease of perspi-

Foxes blast Bees to take undisputed lead

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent staff writer

Mike Ondina hadn't been hitting the way he wanted.

Ed Holly hadn't had any success pitching this year and Jim Geddes had been struggling, too.

Those slumps came to an abrupt end

Monday as the Appleton Foxes pounded Burlington 20-1 (that's right) and vaulted into undisputed first place in the Midwest League's Northern Division as Waterloo was beaten by Danville, 2-0.

It's hard to pick the outstanding player because Holly and Geddes combined for a one-hitter and Ondina (only) had a five-for-six day which included a grand slam homer, triple, two doubles and a single with six RBIs.

Holly was within a pitch or two of being yanked in the first inning as he was unable to hit the strike zone. After walking three batters he finally began to get his fastball over and escaped with only one run in the first inning. Burlington batters weren't able to time his overpowering fast ball. After throwing 111 pitches over seven innings, Holly was replaced by Geddes. Geddes walked the first batter but got four of the next six on strikes. He, too, overpowered the Bees with his fastball.

The Foxes cracked 19 hits, mostly line drives, in posting their second 20-run game of the season. Earlier the Foxes defeated Dubuque 21-8 for a record run total. Monday's game is the greatest difference in score.

Other standouts for Appleton were Kevin Bell, Ed Wheeler, Mike Dlugach and Larry Walters. Bell blasted a two-run homer in the third after Walters tripled. It was the ninth circuit clout of the season for Bell and the eighth since July 6.

Ondina, prior to the game, expressed concern about his inability to get more than one hit a game. "I haven't had many 0-fors, but I'm not getting any two or three hit games," he said.

His first time up Monday, Ondina laced a line drive to deep right-center for a triple and scored on a wild pitch. The next time he grounded out to second. In the fifth, he greeted relief hurler Cy Voelkel with a line single to right to score a runner from third, in the sixth he dumped a Texas League double on the left field line and in the seventh he completed the cycle (single, double, triple and homer) by smashing a tremendous line homer to right-center.

Orioles salvage win over Brewers, 6-2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore's defending American League East champions, beaten by the Milwaukee Brewers in nine of 12 previous meetings this year, salvaged some bruised prestige Monday night.

Paul Blair and Don Baylor drilled run scoring extra base hits to spark a four run third inning against hard luck Clyde Wright (8-14) as the Orioles snapped a two game Brewer winning streak 6-2.

The fifth place Brewers fell five games behind first place Boston in the AL East as they prepared to return home to meet the New York Yankees in a two-night doubleheader tonight.

Blair tripled in the third after a lead-off walk to Enos Cabell. Baylor doubled in another run, and two more scored on an error and a wild pitch.

Mark Belanger delivered two insurance runs for the Orioles with a single in the eighth.

Winner Ross Grimsley (12-8) was touched for a run in the fifth on doubles by George Scott and Charlie Moore. A single by Bob Coluccio sent Moore to third, but Grimsley ended the threat by fanning Pedro Garcia and Robin Yount.

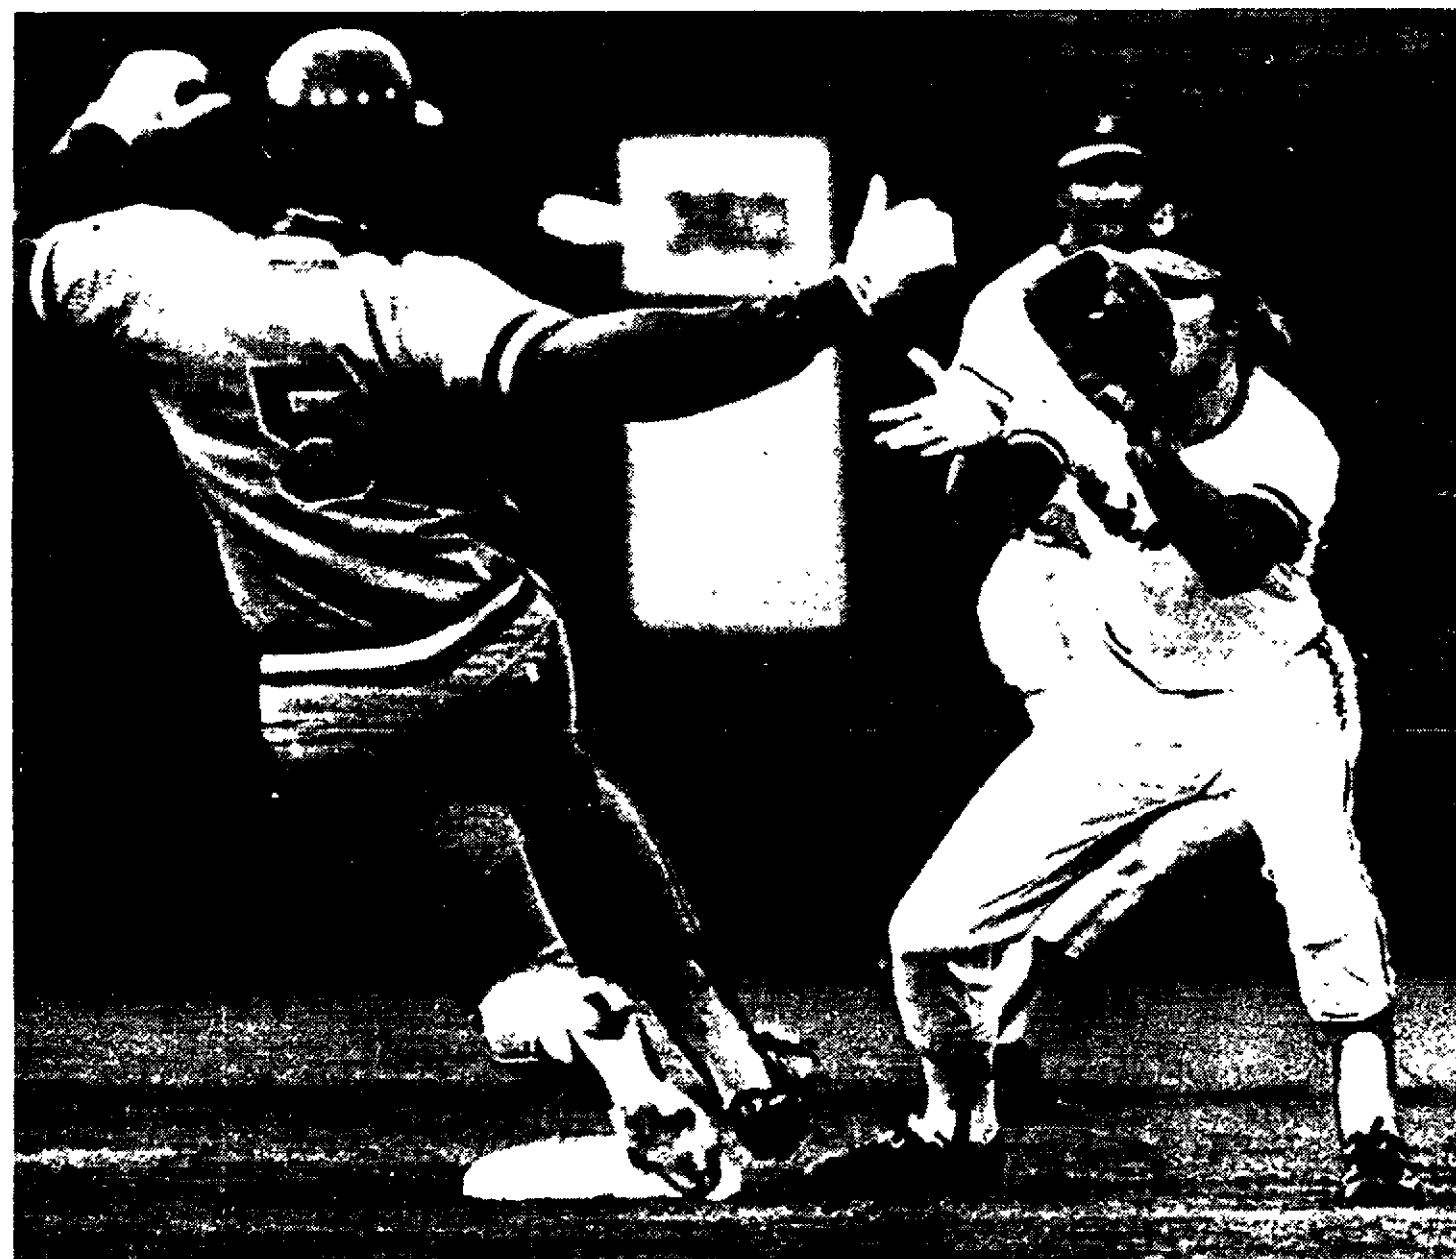

Grimsley gave up the Brewers' final run on John Briggs' 17th homer in the ninth before giving way to Bob Reynolds. It was Grimsley's seventh victory in his last eight decisions.

The Brewers threatened in the eighth when Garcia opened with a double. Two outs later, Don Money beat out an infield hit but first baseman Earl Williams threw out Garcia as he tried to score from second base.

The gamble may have been particularly costly with Briggs, one of the league leaders in home runs and runs

The National Football League players' strike entered a critical stage today with the resumption of talks and rank-and-file criticism of the players association's negotiating tactics.

Efforts to settle the 30-day-old strike were scheduled to resume this afternoon in Washington D.C., under supervision of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service's chief, W.J. Usery.

Usery met Monday with representatives of the NFL Players Association and planned to talk with the NFL Management Council, bargaining agent for the owners, today before resuming negotiations.

Usery said he hoped now that "we can get both sides down to hard, good-faith bargaining. That is what we desire and are working for and we hope an agreement can be consummated."

Meanwhile in Chicago, offensive tackle Bob Asher said "it's getting obvious we've lost the strike. The owners aren't budging."

"I feel Ed Garvey (the players association's executive director) is blowing it. He came into this thing with such hardnosed tactics, using freedom as the theme, that the good points of our stand have been disguised."

Asher said "... by ignoring the public with the 'No Freedom, No Football' approach, probably 80 per cent of the public is against us."

Some hope for compromise, however, was seen Monday in a statement issued under NFLPA President Bill Curry's name.

"We sincerely believe that, at this time, an agreement can be reached," the statement said.

In the training camps, the flock of defections from the strike continued, most notably in Latrobe, Pa., where seven veterans, led by quarterback Joe Gilliam, joined the Pittsburgh Steelers' camp.

Another notable defection was that of quarterback Greg Landry, who joined Detroit's Bloomfield Hills, Mich., camp where the death of Coach Don McCafferty was thought to have ended the solidarity of the Lions' strike.

The Lions announced Monday that assistant coach Rick Forzano would become the interim successor to McCafferty.

Jerry Tagge of the Green Bay Packers and Craig Morton of the Dallas Cowboys joined Gilliam and Landry as quarterbacks abandoning the strike.

Morton said his decision to join practice was not an attempt to take the starting quarterback job from Roger Staubach.

Pat Matson, player representative for the Cincinnati Bengals, said he felt his team could be considered in disfavor by other teams because of the 25 veterans now in camp at Wilmington, Ohio.

"I think there's a good possibility the Bengals are regarded as scabs," Matson said.

Two nonstarting Minnesota Viking veterans reported to summer training camp, while four Rams nonstarters turned up at the Rams' camp at Fullerton, Calif., bringing to 11 the veterans, all non-starters last year, in that camp.

Two more Cleveland Browns veterans reported, bringing the number in that camp to 17. Atlanta wide receiver Preston Riley Monday became the 12th veteran Falcon to report. At least six other teams had one veteran each report Monday.

A bittersweet time

BY CLIFF CHRISTI

GREEN BAY—Quarterback Scott Hunter had a bittersweet reaction to the trade, sending him to the Buffalo Bills.

"I love my teammates; they've been like brothers," Hunter said Monday night after the Packers traded him to the Bills for running back Pete Van Valkenburg and defensive tackle Steve Okoniewski. "It rips my heart to leave these guys. But it's on to Buffalo and it looks like the land of opportunity there."

At Buffalo, Hunter will be competing at quarterback against Joe Ferguson, who started all 14 games last year as a rookie out of the University of Arkansas. The Bills' only other quarterbacks are both rookies: Gary Marangi, a third-round choice from Boston College; and Greg Hare, an eighth-round selection from Ohio State.

Hunter said he talked with the Bills' head coach, Lou Saban, and was "most impressed." He added, "The only thing Coach Saban indicated to me is that the best man will line up behind center and that's all I need to know."

Expressing the opinion that the Packers erred in trading him, Hunter said, "Green Bay's mistake is Buffalo's fortune."

Hunter started eight games for the Packers in 1971 as a rookie after graduating from the University of Alabama. He was a sixth-round draft choice. Then in 1972 he led the Pack to a Central Division championship. A year ago, he started the season opener, later lost his job and by the end of the year was on the taxi squad.

And after the Packers recently acquired Jack Concannon, Hunter admitted he started preparing himself for a trade. "I had an inkling it was coming down the road," he admitted.

Although he was known to be displeased with the insecurity he had as a starter and with the decision to call all the plays from the bench, Hunter refused to criticize Dan Devine or any of the coaches. "Dan Devine," Hunter said, "well it's over and done with the there's nothing you can say."

Scott Hunter

In three years, Hunter has completed 197 passes in 447 attempts for a 44.1 percentage. He has thrown 15 touchdown passes and he's had 30 passes intercepted.

Devine said of the trade, "Scott has made a valuable contribution to our squad in the last three years and we wish him the best in Buffalo. Because of our decision to go with Jerry Tagge as our No. 1 quarterback and because of the acquisition of Jack Concannon, we felt we owed Scott the opportunity to go with a ballclub where he could be number one."

Van Valkenburg is a 6-foot-2, 203-pound running back, who as a rookie last year backed up O.J. Simpson. He was a third round draft choice by New Orleans and after being placed on waivers just prior to the season was picked up by the Bills.

He rushed twice for 20 yards and caught a pass for seven yards. However as a senior at Brigham Young University, he gained 1,386 yards, had a six-yard average and led the NCAA in rushing.

Okoniewski started four games with the Bills last year before spending the final nine weeks on the inactive list. A graduate of the University of Montana, Okoniewski was drafted second by Atlanta in January 1972 and claimed by the Bills on waivers the following fall. A 6-4, 252-pounder, Okoniewski was originally drafted as an offensive lineman.

Commenting on their acquisition, Devine said, "Both Van Valkenburg and Okoniewski are excellent football players and they stand a good chance of making our ball-club."

Van Valkenburg, when reached at his Provo, Utah, home, said, "I'm really happy. I'm kind of glad to be there in Green Bay. I didn't have an awful good chance at Buffalo with O.J. But with hard work I think I can work in at Green Bay. Right now what I need is playing time—experience."

He said he believes in some of the demands by the NFL players in the current strike and has so far been honoring the picket line. However, he will arrive here within a week, and he added, "It's still up in the air as to what I do," in regard to reporting.

Okoniewski, who lives in Missoula, Mont., was unavailable for comment.

Will Tagge's action affect Packers' offensive unity?

Post-Crescent news service

GREEN BAY — On the Green Bay Packers there is probably no unit as closely knit as the offensive line. And during the current National Football league players' strike, the lineman have been the strongest union force on the team.

Now, the designated No. 1 quarterback, Jerry Tagge, has broken ranks and decided to ignore the picket lines. And as many quarterbacks will tell you, they are only as good as their offensive line.

Thus, the obvious question is: What effect will Tagge's reporting have on the men, who are paid to protect him?

Quarterbacks around the league, including Roman Gabriel at Philadelphia, Ken Stabler at Oakland and Ken Anderson at Cincinnati, have been flooding into camp in the past few days. But the question has significant merit in Green Bay in view of the strong union beliefs and some of the previous statements made by the offensive linemen.

For example, center Ken Bowman, tackle Dick Himes and guard Gale Gillingham all sharply criticized defensive captain Jim Carter when he decided to report.

So the question — or one similar — was posed: Will you Gale Gillingham or Dick Himes or whoever be able to serve quarterback Jerry Tagge once the strike is settled without any ill will?

"I'm getting paid to do a job and I'll do it," Gillingham replied. "I've said what I thought in the past and I don't care to comment on it any further."

Himes, the starting right tackle who along with Gillingham forms the nucleus of the line, said, "That's what I'm getting paid to do. When it comes to play, I'll play. I've played before with guys I don't like — that's my job. But it's a lot easier to play with guys you do like."

Bill Hayhoe, the starting left tackle for most of the past two years, said, "I've got too much other stuff on my mind. They've told me I'm going to be switched to center. So I'm not going to be worrying about somebody else once camp starts."

For one of the few times during these difficult days, Coach Dan Devine showed his irritation Monday when queried about the effect of Tagge's reporting will have on the team.

He said if press reports are true that some veterans will bear grudges after the strike is settled, they aren't thinking of the team's welfare.

"I'm disturbed with that kind of talk because it doesn't exist at other camps," Devine grimly said. "When this is over, and God willing it will be over shortly, we'll go to camp and all go to work."

"But this is getting more and more disturbing to our coaching staff. People making these comments are having a winning football team at Green Bay second or third on their priorities."

"I still recognize the right of the player to strike. But when the strike is over, the minute it's over, as far as I'm concerned it's forgotten."

Devine said he was impressed by the reaction of Tom Dempsey, Philadelphia's player representative to the announcement that Gabriel was reporting. Dempsey said, "All I know is that when the strike is over, I'll be looking up to Roman Gabriel for leadership, the same as last year."

Jerry Tagge

Tagge and guard Kent Branstetter both reported to Monday afternoon's practice after taking their physicals.

Commenting on his decision, Tagge said, "I just felt I have to look at the future. We've got to prepare for the season. I just feel this was the right time. At this time I feel it is morally right to cross the picket line. I owe it to the Packers and the fans and to myself."

"I feel I can help myself and my teammates by being in camp so we won't be in the position of being way behind."

"A leader has got to make his own decision and I made it. It was time to make up my mind and I hope I made the right choice."

Tagge said he has considered reporting for some time back, but that last Thursday's game weighed heavily on his decision. "Sitting in my hotel room that night are my guts out — knowing there was a game and I wasn't there," he said.

As far as his teammates are concerned, Tagge said, "They are too good of ballplayers and individuals to let something like this bother them."

Sheer practicality dictated Branstetter's decision. "I wanted to come into camp from the start," he confessed.

"Being a young guy, I need the work. It's as simple as that. This year I'll be playing guard, while last year I played mostly tackle so I've got to learn a new position. Plus, I'm coming off knee surgery."

"I got to a point where I was hurting myself. If I stayed out much longer, I would have lost my job and I can't afford that. Guys like myself, if I'm not on the ball, I'll be back in Houston," which is Branstetter's hometown.

The Packers other two veteran quarterbacks — Jim Del Gaizo, and Jack Concannon — both said they weren't influenced by Tagge's decision. They will continue to honor the picket line.

According to Devine, he won't hold anything against either of them. He said Tagge didn't solidify his position as the starting quarterback by reporting, although he will get a head start in practice.

Devine listed both Tagge and Branstetter as possible participants in Friday's game at Buffalo. The starting quarterback, though, is scheduled to be Charlie Napper.

Himes, who has assisted Bowman with many of the player responsibilities, admitted now that Tagge jumped, "I wouldn't be surprised if the number gets as high as eight or 10."

Several of the strikers planned to meet today with former Green Bay quarterback Bart Starr.

Yankee wins banned in Boston

BY FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

They used to ban books in Boston. Now they ban Yankee victories.

The New Yorkers' futility streak in Fenway Park was made one loss more futile Monday night when the Red Sox clipped them 2-1 in 11 innings. That makes 11 straight losses in Boston, and 20 in their last 21 games there. They last won there last year.

If the Yankees are starting to believe in hexes, they got some more evidence Monday night. The Red Sox managed only three hits and won the game in the 11th without a hit.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Baltimore Orioles trimmed the Milwaukee Brewers 6-2; the Detroit Tigers clubbed the Cleveland Indians 8-2; the Texas Rangers punished the Kansas City Royals 10-1, and the Oakland A's outscored the Chicago White Sox 11-9.

Lefty Sam McDowell held the Red Sox hitless through five innings and scoreless through 7 23 innings, until Dwight Evans slugged a tying homer high into the left-field screen. The score stayed 1-1 until the 11th, when a walk, wild throw by New York reliever Sparky Lyle on a sacrifice bunt and another walk loaded the bases and a sacrifice fly by Terry Hughes brought in the winning run.

Tigers 8, Indians 2

Four Detroit batters sent first-inning homers into the stands, causing any late arrivals to miss a major league record.

Never before had a team hit four homers in the first inning, although four teams have hit five home runs in a single inning.

Al Kaline, Bill Freehan and Mickey Stanley belted consecutive homers off Fritz Peterson, and two batters later, Ed Brinkman connected off Steve Kline. The barrage was more than enough for Mickey Lolich, who scattered six hits.

Rangers 10, Royals 1

Ferguson Jenkins pitched the top of the fifth inning as if his 8-1 lead was in jeopardy. And it was.

His Ranger teammates had made it 8-1 before rain delayed the game for one hour and 36 minutes—three outs short of an official Texas victory. When the rains stopped, Jenkins started fast, striking out three straight Royals on 12 total pitches. With the game official, he then breezed to his 14th victory in 23 decisions. He allowed six hits.

A's 11, White Sox 9

Oakland overcame four of its own errors in one inning and two Chicago leads to beat the White Sox.

Down 4-1 after three innings and 5-4 after six, the A's bounced back with four runs in the seventh and three more in the eighth.

Davidson, of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., is president of Guardian Industries Corp. of Novi, Mich., a manufacturer of glass for automotive and architectural industries.

"I'll have no interest in the club at all," Zollner said, adding that he "didn't want to sell the club until it was an artistic and financial success."

The Pistons' best year ever was this past season when they went seven games before bowing to Chicago in the first round of NBA playoffs under Coach Ray Scott.

"The success of the Pistons was a substantial additional motivation," Davidson said of his purchase.

He said the team would remain in Detroit and play at its Cobo Arena home.

"We've got the best chance of any professional sport team in Detroit to win a championship," he said.

There are seven pro teams in Detroit. Tyner and Bernard Hartman, who own and operate multiple housing complexes, are among the Pistons partners. They also own the thoroughbred race track at Hazel Park.

Detroit group buys Pistons

DETROIT (AP) — Fred Zollner waited for the right moment to sell the Detroit Pistons, and apparently it came Monday. The Pistons were sold to a Detroit group for $8.1 million.

"I've kept my promise to the fans that the Pistons would stay in Detroit," said the 73-year-old Zollner, who has owned the franchise since it debuted in Fort Wayne, Ind., in 1941 in the then-existing National Basketball League.

The sale, subject to approval by the National Basketball Association board of governors, was to a limited partnership headed by William M. Davidson.

Davidson, who Zollner said will own more than 50 per cent of the interest, has been designated chief executive for operations. Herbert Tyner has been named chief executive for administration.

General Manager Ed Coil said he would remain at his post at least an-

Nan Farrar, Madison, was two more strokes back at 85. JoAnn Walker of Madison, bidding for a record eighth title, was at 86, while Marge Olson of Madison shot 87.

Sylvia Porter Things to do to cut your '74 income taxes

Nearly 2,000,000 of you overpay your federal income taxes each year because of mathematical errors—an utterly silly waste of your own money which the U.S. government does not welcome and tries to avoid.

At last reporting date covering individual returns filed in 1972, one of every 17 returned had a mathematical error. Included were 1,900,000 taxpayers who had overpaid their income taxes to the tune of a hefty $156 million. But that's only part of the tale, for the fact is that additional millions overpay in ways that go far beyond mistakes in arithmetic.

If these taxpayers would only take the trouble to understand the tax laws better, they could substantially reduce their tax bills.

Suggested guidelines

The proper time for my annual how-to-slash-your-income-taxes-before-the-year-end series is the fall and I plan to submit the columns then. But now, in mid-year, says P. K. Seidman, senior consultant of the international accounting firm of Seidman & Seidman, "is the time to start planning intelligently and the way to do that is to look at what taxpayers failed to do, or did incorrectly last year, and build on that." More specifically, Seidman suggests these guidelines:

Try now to estimate what your income will be in 1974 and if possible, to form some idea of what your income might be in 1975. This will tell you whether to attempt to increase your income during the balance of the year or shift it to next year—a sort of do-it-yourself income averaging. The objective is to even out your tax brackets if you have a wildly fluctuating income.

Don't be a conformist on your allowable deductions. For instance, says Seidman, "if this year is loaded with income, prepay such items as your state income taxes, real estate taxes and interest on loans."

Build up your income or reduce your expenses to protect any net operating loss deduction. With a three-year loss carryback and a five-year loss carryforward, the use of a loss you incurred in 1969 expires in 1974.

Take paper loss, switch

If you have a paper loss on securities but you want to maintain your position in the industry, take the loss and switch into other companies doing a similar business so you can share in any rebound in the stock market.

If this is a low income year for you, it may be a fine time to pick up income from Series E bonds you hold. Assuming you are a cash basis taxpayer (which nearly all of us are), you can elect the way to report the annual increment in interest—treat the increase in redemption value as income in each year as the increase occurs, or include in income the entire increment in value at maturity or other disposition of the bonds. You can change to annual reporting with a pick-up of all the accumulated interest at any time without seeking government permission.

If you're now planning your charitable contributions for the year, carefully consider taking full advantage of the tax laws by giving securities on which you have capital gains. You will pay no tax on the gains and if you are a high bracket taxpayer, you actually can wind up cash ahead.

If you have worthless stock next to worthless stock, try to make an actual sale of it, even for pennies. Otherwise, you will be required to present "outside criteria for proof of total worthlessness," cautions Seidman.

Do not waste your medical expense deduction—which is available only to the extent that the expenses exceed 3 percent of your adjusted gross income. Try to concentrate your payments in a year which will enable you to exceed the 3 percent limitation. Think this through: should payments be accelerated into 1974 or should you try to postpone payments to 1975? If your controlled corporation has a medical payment plan and pays all these bills, the corporation has a full deduction and the payment is not income to you.

Do not overlook such legitimate deductions as fees paid for investment services and other costs for market advice. Keep track of these expenses through the year so you have the figures at hand when you fill out your return in 1975.

Police & fire

Tony Fadroski, route 2, Pulaski, a truckdriver for Valley Leasing Co., Inc., 3111 W. Wisconsin Ave., Grand Chute, filed a complaint with the Outagamie County Sheriff stating that someone broke into his truck about 10:30 p.m. Sunday and stole his radio valued at $130.

Entry was made by forcing the wing window and rolling down the large window. Damage to the truck was minimal.

Colleen M. Immel, route 2, Shiocton, was treated and released from St. Elizabeth Hospital Sunday after a two-car accident at Franklin and Superior streets.

Immel was traveling east on Franklin Street when another vehicle, driven by Leslie J. Roche, 1705 N. Rankin St., Appleton, collided with her car. Roche said he did not see Immel's car approaching.

Stereo equipment valued at $575 was taken from the upstairs apartment of Eugene G. Wurzer Jr., 406½ E. Lincoln St., between 9 p.m. Sunday and 4 a.m. Monday.

Also missing is a pre-World War II 16 gauge pump shotgun. Entry was obtained by removing the kitchen screen.

Two flat bed wheelbarrows valued at $120 were stolen from a construction site at Langedyke Park, where the Theobald Construction Co. is building an athletic facility. The theft occurred last weekend.

Police said someone drove a car over the 18th green of Reid Municipal Golf Course early Thursday, tearing up some of the turf. It was the second such incident at the same green this week. No damage estimate was given.

CHILTON — Mrs. Alfred F. Haltiner, 63, is listed in good condition today at Calumet Memorial Hospital with bumps and bruises she sustained in a Sunday night car accident in the Town of Harrison.

According to preliminary reports, Mrs. Haltiner was riding in a car driven south by her husband on Harwood Road when it and a car driven by Daniel J. Wieldman, 16, 63 Lakecrest Drive, Menasha, collided at the intersection of Harrison Road.

Wieldman's car, which was east-bound, struck the right front door of the Haltiner car. Police said the intersection has no stop sign.

Funds released to combat gonorrhea

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—The release of $353,754 was authorized by the state of Wisconsin Thursday to combat what was termed as a near epidemic of gonorrhea.

The Board on Government Operations approved the release after it was given a report indicating that 273 persons out of every 100,000 in Wisconsin have gonorrhea.

In 1960, the rate was 27.6 persons per 100,000. The money will go to local governmental units to combat the spread of the disease.

Attacks on lawmen up

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — There were 179 attacks on law enforcement officers in Wisconsin during the first three months of this year, up 15 percent from a year earlier, Atty. Gen. Robert Warren reported Monday.

The attacks averaged about two per day, he noted. Warren said 83 percent of all assaults occurred while officers were involved in official duties, such as attempting to stop robberies, disturbances, and handling prisoners.

Firearms were used in 3 percent of the cases and cutting instruments and other weapons in 6 percent. Hands, fists or feet were used in the other 91 percent of the cases, he said.

The second impeachment article

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is the text of the second article of impeachment, approved Monday by the House Judiciary Committee: Article II

Using the powers of the office of President of the United States, Richard M. Nixon, in violation of his constitutional oath faithfully to execute the office of President of the United States and, to the best of his ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States, and in disregard of his constitutional duty to take care that the laws be faithfully executed, has repeatedly engaged in conduct violating the constitutional rights of citizens, impairing the due and proper administration of justice and the conduct of lawful inquiries, or contravening the laws governing agencies of the executive branch and the purposes of these agencies.

This conduct has included one or more of the following:

(1) He has, acting personally and through his subordinates and agents, endeavored to obtain from the Internal Revenue Service, in violation of the constitutional rights of citizens, confidential information contained in income tax returns for purposes not authorized by law, and to cause, in violation of the constitutional rights of citizens, income tax audits or other income tax investigations to be initiated or conducted in a discriminatory manner.

(2) He misused the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Secret Service, and other executive personnel, in violation or disregard of the constitutional rights of citizens, by directing, or authorizing such agencies or personnel to conduct or continue electronic surveillance or other investigations for purposes unrelated to national security, the enforcement of laws, or any other lawful function of his office; he did direct, authorize, or permit the use of information obtained thereby for purposes unrelated to national security, the enforcement of laws, or any other lawful function of his office; and he did direct the concealment of certain records made by the Federal Bureau of Investigation of electronic surveillance.

(3) He has, acting personally and through his subordinates and agents, in violation or disregard of the constitutional rights of citizens, authorized and permitted to be maintained a secret investigative unit within the office of the President, financed in part with money derived from campaign contributions to him, which unlawfully utilized the resources of the Central Intelligence Agency, engaged in covert and unlawful activities, and attempted to prejudice the constitutional right of an accused to a fair trial.

(4) He has failed to take care that the laws were faithfully executed by failing to act when he knew or had reason to know that his close subordinates endeavored to impede and frustrate lawful inquiries by duly constituted executive, judicial, and legislative entities concerning the unlawful entry into the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee, and the cover-up thereof, and concerning other unlawful activities including those relating to

Frøehlich, Kastenmeier cast pro-impeachment votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reps. Harold Frøehlich, R-Wis., and Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., sided with the majority Monday night when the House Judiciary Committee, on a 28-10 roll call, voted to recommend a second article of impeachment of President Nixon.

Kastenmeier was one of 21 Democrats and Frøehlich one of seven Republicans voting for the article, which accuses Nixon of abusing the powers of the presidency.

Earlier, Kastenmeier and Frøehlich also were with the majority when the committee refused to strike from a proposed impeachment article a section charging the president with abusing the FBI and other agencies in electronic surveillance activities.

Twenty-one Democrats and seven Republicans voted against the motion to strike.

Frøehlich and Kastenmeier split when the committee, on a 24-14 rollcall, rejected an amendment to a proposed impeachment article which would have narrowed the language by restricting a count on coverup activities to the Watergate break-in and deleting the phrase "and concerning other matters."

Frøehlich was among 12 Republicans and two Democrats who voted for the amendment. Kastenmeier joined 19 Democrats and five Republicans in voting against it.

2nd article approved, 3rd under consideration

WASHINGTON (AP) — With approval of two broad impeachment articles behind it, the House Judiciary Committee opened debate today on whether President Nixon should be charged as well for his refusal to turn over subpoenaed tape recordings and other materials to its inquiry.

The first impeachment article to be proposed by a Republican was offered by Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, the minority's second-ranking member.

The article said Nixon "has failed without lawful cause or excuse" to produce the materials from 147 conversations which the committee sought in eight subpoenas issued during April, May and June.

"The prime example of stonewalling is right there," McClory told the committee on its sixth day of nationally broadcast debate.

In a bid to speed up proceedings, the panel agreed to a two-hour limit for general debate on the proposal.

Other proposed articles on Nixon's personal finances and on the secret bombing of Cambodia were to be introduced later. Committee members were unsure if they could finish their deliberations by tonight.

The committee climaxed a 12-hour session Monday night by approving, 28 to 10, an article charging Nixon with violating his oath of office and his constitutional duties.

McClory predicted in advance of debate that his proposed third article would be approved 22 to 16.

"Congress itself is pitted against the executive," he said in defense of his proposal. He said executive privilege "has no place in an impeachment inquiry."

McClory's swing to the proimpeachment side Monday in the abuse of power debate produced the most one-sided substantive vote of the public deliberations.

Seven Republicans joined the 21 committee Democrats in support of the article, which many of them judged to be stronger than the obstruction of justice article approved Saturday, 27-11.

"Just as a consistent abuse of power holds more danger for the republic than a single criminal act, so is this a far more serious charge than in the article already adopted," said Rep. Lawrence J. Hogan, R-Md., a leading supporter of Article II.

Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., called the committee's action "a victory for justice" and said history may compare it to the challenge of the English barons that led to the signing of the Magna Carta in 1215, a milestone in the growth of political liberty in England.

President Nixon's supporters on the panel viewed the proceedings darkly. "I'm deeply concerned for the future of the presidency," said Rep. Delbert L. Latta, R-Ohio.

Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., said the committee was taking a step toward parliamentary government by basing impeachment on so vague a charge as abuse of presidential power.

But the Democrats and Republicans supporting the article said the offenses charged against Nixon were so serious they threatened the freedom of the American people.

Article II is based on the oath a President takes to faithfully execute his office and to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution, and on the duty the Constitution imposes on him to see that the laws are faithfully executed.

It charges Nixon with violating both his oath and his constitutional duties by misusing the Internal Revenue Service, authorizing illegal wiretaps, establishing a secret investigative unit in the White House that engaged in unlawful activities, and interfering with investigations of the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

"We came perilously close to losing our basic freedoms," said Rep. Paul S. Sarbanes, D-Md., in a final round of debate before the vote. "And it is for that reason we must act affirmatively tonight."

During the long day and night of debate on the article, Nixon's supporters insisted there either was no evidence linking the President to the illegal acts charged, or that the acts were justified by national security considerations.

The article covers acts by Nixon's subordinates, as well as his own, a provision challenged by Wiggins as attempting to hold Nixon responsible for the misdeeds of others.

But McClory, citing the score of former White House and Nixon re-election campaign officials either in prison or under indictment, said Nixon could not escape responsibility.

"A President can only act through his subordinates," McClory said. "The question is, is he tolerating, has he tolerated this kind of conduct in and around the White House?"

Much of the debate centered on the establishment of the plumbers investigative unit in the White House, which Nixon's defenders said was entirely justified by national security concerns caused by the leaking of the Pentagon Papers by Daniel Ellsberg.

Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., said between the administration's wiretapping of private citizens and the operations of the plumbers unit, "the Nixon White House made the secret police a reality in the United States."

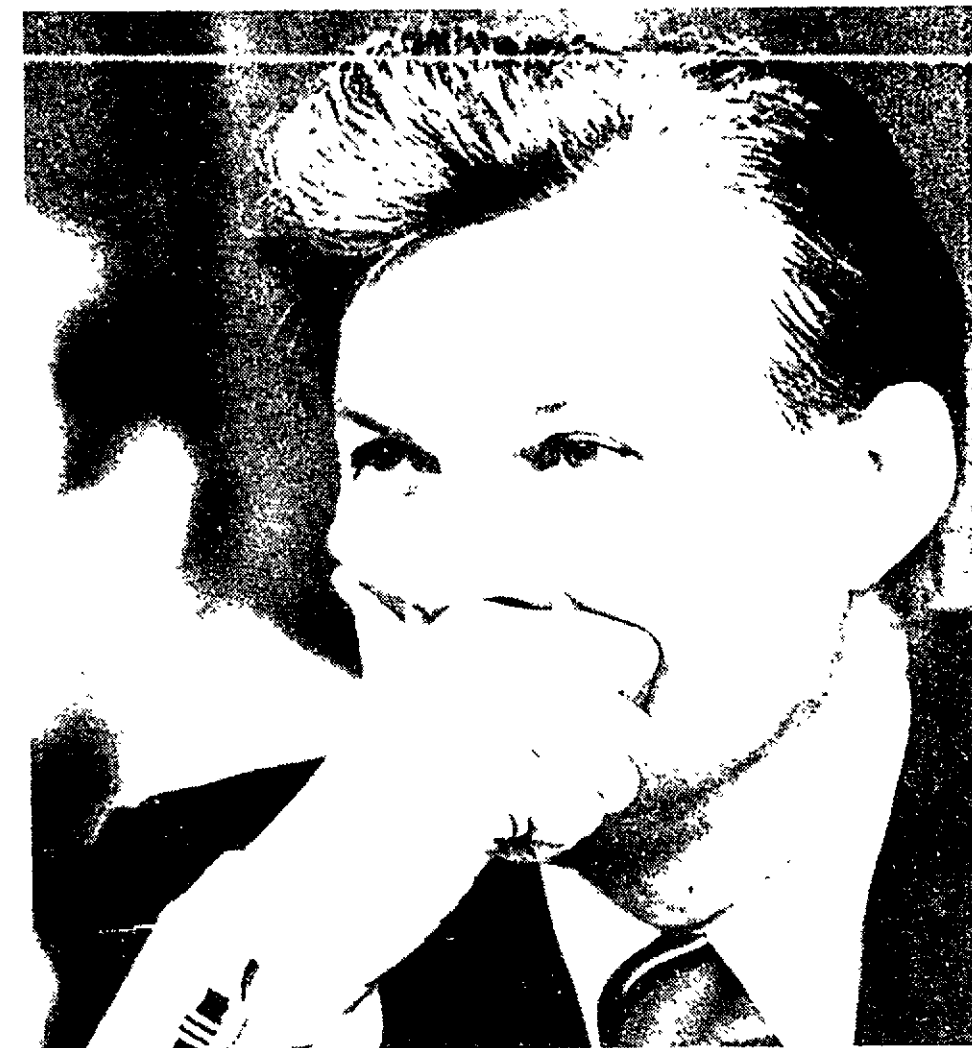

The third article to be proposed is also based on Nixon's oath of office and constitutional requirement to see that the laws are faithfully executed.

It states that he "has failed without lawful cause or excuse to produce papers and things as directed by duly authorized subpoenas ..." The committee issued eight subpoenas calling for tapes of 147 conversations. It received edited transcripts of 42 conversations.

McClory's proposed article says by refusing to honor the subpoenas, Nixon was undermining the constitutional process of impeachment.

Only McClory and Hogan among the Republicans are expected to support the proposed article, and at least one Democrat, Rep. Walter Flowers, D-

Greece, Turkey agree on Cyprus

By The Associated Press

Turkey and Greece have reached a compromise agreement "in principle" for ending their military showdown on Cyprus, a spokesman for the Turkish delegation to the Geneva peace talks reported today.

He predicted the accord would be signed this afternoon.

But Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros told newsmen that, while he is hopeful, there were still a number of problems to resolve before a truce could be signed.

The Turkish spokesman said the exact wording of the agreement was being worked out, including a compromise on the potentially explosive issue of Turkish troop withdrawals. He indicated the Turks would agree to wording in the agreement that would speak of Turkish troop reductions, rather than withdrawals.

A Greek delegate said, however, that the new Turkish formula commits the Ankara government to withdraw its invasion force when a final political settlement is reached on the Mediterranean island. The Turkish military presence thereby would be officially defined as temporary, thus saving the Greeks face.

Once an interim military agreement is concluded in Geneva, the Cyprus peace talks will be able to advance to a second stage to deal with the island republic's political future. This would include an overhauling of the Cyprus constitution as well as the 1960 agreement whereby Greece, Turkey and Britain guaranteed Cyprus independence.

These talks could begin toward the end of the first week in August, the Turkish spokesman said. One date being mentioned was Aug. 8.

Observers in Geneva reacted to the latest pronouncements with caution, recalling that several times during the six-days of talks delegates had said an agreement was near at hand. But each time the accord fell through at the last moment.

The talks again appeared headed toward failure when Turkey, which had been taking a hard line, offered new proposals at the three power conference.

The new Turkish proposals came after Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger conferred long-distance from Washington with Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit in Ankara. Turkish sources said.

Members of the Greek delegation, who voiced deep pessimism Monday night, told newsmen the atmosphere had brightened at the outset of the sixth day of tough bargaining in Geneva.

Married cadet to press fight against West Point

LEXINGTON, Mass. (AP) — Donald Boyd does not look like a rebel. And until he challenged West Point's rule against cadet marriages, he says he didn't feel like one, either.

"But I do now, because I'm fighting for something I believe in," Boyd said Monday.

The army career of Boyd, 23, fell apart on May 9, when the U.S. Military Academy received an anonymous letter that began, "It is known that cadet Donald Boyd, class of 1974, is married..."

His tactical officer told him he would either have to quit the academy or be thrown out. Boyd chose to fight.

He already has been denied a temporary restraining order, and he plans to go into U.S. District Court in New York on Aug. 20 to seek an injunction.

The academy prohibits cadet marriages, but it is not denying Boyd a degree and a commission because he got married. The technical charge against Boyd is violating the academy's honor code by lying about his marital status. The alleged lying occurred when he listed the former Joanne K. "Jody" Moon on an insurance form as a friend instead of his wife.

But for the Boyds, who had known each other since prep school three years earlier, getting married was a matter of honor, too.

"We wanted to," said Jody, 22, a slim, reddish blonde.

"We had been planning on it. But it was kind of pushed by the fact that I got pregnant. We might have waited otherwise."

On December 23, 1972, the couple got married in a small ceremony at Jody's parents' home in Silver Spring, Md.

"I knew other kids whose girl friends got abortions," Boyd said. "I don't believe in abortion. There was only one decision — when to get married."

He said the thought of letting Jody have the baby and wait until after graduation to get married did not seem right either.

"I could not accept having my child being illegitimate," Boyd said.

Now the couple and their 11-month-old daughter, Christin, live in Boyd's parents' Victorian house, and they wait for an outcome.

Boyd's lawyer, Steven Hyman of New York, said that in his next court appearance, he would try "to stop them from using the code as a ruse for ousting Don from the academy and to have the marriage rule declared unconstitutional." Hyman succeeded in getting a similar marriage ban at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy declared unconstitutional.

Boyd said the honor charge was a way to keep that from happening at West Point — "They're not willing to face up to the issue, because they knew they would lose."

Jody said she feels they are fighting for others besides themselves.

"If a guy is allowed to make his own life decisions, if he has to accept responsibility, that makes him a better officer and a more mature person," she said. "If you have all of your decisions made for you, you don't have to accept responsibility for what happens afterward."

Make Ford president, Proxmire says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., proposed Monday that Vice President Ford be designated acting President while President Nixon concentrates his energies on defense against impeachment.

Proxmire's proposal came after Nixon economic adviser Kenneth Rush told a Joint Economic Committee hearing that Nixon can still command leadership despite his impeachment battle. Rush said Nixon could still muster Congressional and public support on economics matters.

"Presidents in the past have been under serious siege and exercised leadership," Rush said, citing Abraham Lincoln, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman.

However, Proxmire said Nixon's problems are far graver than those faced by the presidents Rush cited.

"His word, his honesty is going to be under constant attack, day after day," Proxmire said of the ongoing impeachment debate in the House and possibly later in the Senate. He said the attacks on Nixon's credibility will make it harder for him to bolster confidence in his administration.

He suggested Nixon implement the 25th Amendment to the Constitution, under which a disabled President temporarily may transfer duties of his office to the Vice President.

Rush replied that would be "extraordinarily disruptive" and cause "great harm to the country."

Mideast talks resume

WASHINGTON (AP) — A renewed U.S. diplomatic effort for additional progress in Middle East peace negotiations opens with a meeting between

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon.

Today's afternoon session will be the first of a series Kissinger expects to hold with key Israeli and Arab leaders over the next month.

The idea is to define the issues as seen by all sides in order to work out a formula to carry Israel and the Arabs beyond the current cease-fire and limited troop disengagement agreements.

In today's talks, for instance, Kissinger and Allon will go over options regarding possible disengagement with Jordan, a further troop separation between Israel and Egypt, the opening of the Geneva peace conference, the status of Palestinian Arabs and the American aid program to the Jewish state.

U.S. officials say Kissinger will not press any specific ideas on what he feels should happen, but he will urge Allon to examine all possibilities with the aim of establishing optimum flexibility.

For example, the United States wants the Jerusalem government to reconsider its previous refusals to open disengagement talks with Jordan before a second stage of negotiations is held with Egypt on further troop separations.

U.S. officials said that Kissinger is sympathetic to the domestic political problems facing Premier Yitzhak Rabin's government because of pressures from Orthodox Jews not to give up any of the West Bank of the Jordan River.

Rabin's government, which holds power by a single vote, has tried to put off the Jordanian disengagement question by claiming it is not appropriate under current circumstances since Jordan did not fight in last October's Israeli-Arab war.

However, Kissinger is expected to suggest that Allon consider carrying on second stage disengagement talks with Egypt at the same time negotiations are opened with Jordan.

New proposal probable on county garage

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent staff writer

An Appleton man said Monday that he is not yet ready to deal with the Outagamie County Highway Committee on a highway department garage at Black Creek that he and the county own.

Ralph Gertsch, co-owner of Osborn Manufacturing Co., Black Creek, hinted, however, that one of his proposals will be that the county sell him the disputed garage and then lease it from him.

Gertsch gave no indication what he would pay, although several months ago he offered $18,000 for the garage, which a year ago cost the county $25,000.

"You still want me to work on a purchase-lease deal? Will it be okay if I bring in something like this?" Gertsch asked. Committee Chairman George Kroes told him to go ahead.

Forest Junction volunteer fire chief honored

FOREST JUNCTION — Harold Ott, retiring chief of the volunteer fire department, and his wife were honored by friends and colleagues last week at a farewell celebration.

A 24-year veteran of the squad, Ott has been chief for the past 10 years. "After all that time," he said, "the original idea is still the same for the volunteer firemen. The motivation remains unchanged. We know why we're here and what we have to do when a fire occurs in our community. No number of years can change that concern for people."

Ott explained that one has to do a lot of "really outstanding" work to get much credit as a volunteer fireman. "You're just expected to be there, and you are because your neighbors depend on you."

In the last years, Forest Junction "has been especially careful about fires," according to Ott. "Although there haven't been a lot, we have been satisfied with our performance when we've been called."

The Ott's plan to move to Kimberly from their home just west of the village. Ott will continue his present employment with the Wickes Lumber Co.

Rezoning depend on future impact

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent staff writer

Requests for rezonings along W. College Avenue west of U.S. 41 will be looked at from the point of their impact on the future development of the entire strip, as well as on their individual merits.

The Outagamie County zoning committee informally took this stance Monday after public hearings on two rezoning requests, a hearing on a planned unit development and discussion with Town of Grand Chute Chairman Ira Livingston.

As part of its look into that area, the committee agreed to ask for a joint meeting with officials from both Grand Chute and Greenville with a key focus on future sanitary sewer service for the area.

Grand Chute and Greenville border at Mayflower Drive and development problems involve both towns.

Dochting Dodge of Appleton, Inc. is seeking to rezone 4.5 acres of land from agriculture to commercial on the south side of W. College Avenue, about a quarter mile west of Casaloma Drive.

And, Long Real Estate is seeking a rezoning of a strip one-half mile long on both sides of College Avenue east from Mayflower Drive. Long wants the south side, a strip 250 feet deep involving 15.5 acres, zoned to multiple family, and the north side, a strip 550 feet deep containing 36.6 acres, zoned to commercial.

Residents in the area objected to both rezonings and the committee has deferred decisions pending further study into the overall development plan for W. College.

The committee did, however, give preliminary approval to Tom Long's planned unit development for his proposed restaurant across College Avenue just west of Communications Drive. Final approval will hinge on the county board approving leasing of air rights over the avenue and the availability of sewers. The property is now zoned for commercial use.

County Planner Robert Stadel said the restaurant proposal "was not inconsistent with general planning principles," but he wanted to defer specific comments until more details of the plan are developed.

Under a planned unit development, building design must be approved by the county and any changes from the original proposal must also be approved before being made.

Long admitted that availability of sanitary sewer was the "crucial" item in the building plans. He said he planned to petition the Town of Greenville to seek service from Grand Chute.

Supv. Joseph Kasperek, zoning committee chairman, noted that if Grand

Scant interest in precinct positions

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent staff writer

A distinct lack of interest has been shown by both Democrats and Republicans in Outagamie County in running for the posts of precinct committeemen.

Only four Republicans and four Democrats filed nomination papers to be on the ballot in September for what at one time was a relatively important political job, but is now almost entirely dutyless.

Each party is entitled one committeeman for each precinct in the county. Outagamie County has 54 precincts.

The candidates who will be on the September ballot are David Brooker, Appleton 12th Ward; Andrew Jimos, Appleton 2nd Ward; Richard Van Handel, Grand Chute 1st Precinct, and John Verbruggen, Little Chute, all Republicans.

For the Democrats the candidates are Donald Promer, Kaukauna 3rd Ward; Betty Sanders, Little Chute; Richard Sampson, Appleton 12th Ward, and Lawrence Longley, Appleton 15th Ward.

In 1972, the Republicans had 15 precincts filled and the Democrats had 10.

The people elected to the precinct jobs make up the "statutory" party organization in the county. Brooker, who is Republican Statutory Chairman, said the main functions of the statutory party are to submit the names for poll workers and to fill vacancies on the ballot if a candidate dies or withdraws before an election.

"The precinct committeemen were supposed to form the nucleus of the campaign organization," Brooker said, "but the voluntary committees have taken that function over."

After the primary election, the statutory party representatives meet to elect a chairman and to appoint people to fill precinct posts where there were no candidates. Brooker said there were only a few appointments made after the election two years ago because of the difficulty in finding people willing to serve. He said he anticipated more appointments this fall because of the few people running.

"There are people willing to serve who don't want to bother with circulating nomination papers," Brooker noted. It requires 20 signatures to get a candidate's name on the ballot for precinct committeeman.

Brooker conceded there is little for the statutory party organization to do now. The poll workers' names are submitted to the mayors, village presidents and town chairman for appointment. "It's technically up to them to make the appointments from lists submitted by the parties," Brooker said. He added that he has a requirement that any name he submits must be a paid-up member of the Republican party.

He said he could recall only two occasions when the statutory party committee was called upon to fill vacancies on the ballot. Once was when the party's nominee for coroner died after the primary and the other was when the nominee for sheriff withdrew.

The Republicans have separate chairmen for the statutory and voluntary organization. James Hensel is chairman of the voluntary party in the county. Longley serves as chairman of both the voluntary and statutory organizations for the Democrats, however. He was unavailable for comment on the Democrats' plans for the statutory organization.

Assessment reductions $35,350 in Clintonville after board of review

CLINTONVILLE — As a result of changes made in the 1974 assessment roll by the board of review, there was a total reduction of $35,350, it was learned Monday.

The board this year had 34 property owners file objections to their assessments on 46 parcels of property. Assessments on 33 parcels owned by 22 persons were sustained by the board.

Thirteen parcels held by 12 property owners had assessments lowered. A breakdown shows mercantile improvement reduced by $9,350, residential land reduced by $2,500 and residential improvements reduced by $23,500.

The total for class B property (such as machinery, tools and patterns, furniture and fixtures and equipment) and all other personal property for 1973 was $1,826,640. To date for this year, the total shown by James Lindow, city assessor, is $1,375,260, but it does not include assessments at manufacturing concerns, which are being revalued by the Wisconsin Department of Revenue. These figures will be certified to the city by October, Lindow said.

The city had a revaluation this year by Arrow Appraisal Co., Green Bay. That firm's survey showed the city's real estate assessment for 1974 is $33,061,250, up nearly $15 million from the 1973 total of $18,074,880.

The total does not include approximately $362,600 in new residential construction and about $312,760 in new commercial construction.

Upon completion of the revaluation, informal hearings were held with representatives of the firm, with about 200 property owners appearing in regard to their assessments. Some adjustments were made as a result.

Earlier this month the assessment rolls were open for inspection, followed by the board of review session.

A breakdown of the real estate assessments for 1974, all showing increases over last year, is as follows (amount of increase in parentheses): residential land, $4,358,830 ($1,970,290); residential improvement, $21,249,590 ($9,797,580); mercantile land, $1,552,090 ($580,570); mercantile improvement, $5,874,850 ($2,630,590); agriculture land, $14,460 ($2,730), and agriculture improvement, $11,250 ($4,610).

Total for residential was $25,608,420, an increase of $1,767,870. Mercantile totals were $7,426,940, up $3,211,160, while agriculture totals were $25,890,

Under the 1974 personal property comparisons, merchant's stock was valued at $2,234,150, an increase of $893,930, and class A stock (cattle) listed at $12,450, up $3,620. All other livestock in class A totaled $80, a drop of $20. Stock totals were $2,246,680, up $897,530.

The total for class B property (such as machinery, tools and patterns, furniture and fixtures and equipment) and all other personal property for 1973 was $1,826,640. To date for this year, the total shown by James Lindow, city assessor, is $1,375,260, but it does not include assessments at manufacturing concerns, which are being revalued by the Wisconsin Department of Revenue. These figures will be certified to the city by October, Lindow said.

The grand total assessment of real estate and personal property for 1974 will be known after the report in the fall from the state.

Dyke discloses 1973 net worth totaling $38,735

MILWAUKEE (AP) — William Dyke, Republican candidate for governor, has reported a 1973 net worth of $38,735, which he compares with $991,000 reported by Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

Dyke said Saturday he had an adjusted gross income last year of $14,587 as reported on his U.S. income tax return and $17,460 on his state return.

The difference reflects his transfer of residence from Madison to Mount Horeb after losing an attempt to get re-elected mayor of Madison, he said.

Dyke said he paid $1,724 in state and federal income taxes for 1973, and $1,723 in property taxes. He listed assets of $92,923 and liabilities of $54,228 as of Dec. 31.

Lucey reported having paid $65,000 in taxes, including $801 in federal income tax and $1,209 in state income tax.

Dyke did not itemize his income sources. An aide said they include Dyke's law practice, horse breeding, farming, painting, consultation services and three months of mayoral salary.

The data was prepared for the State Ethics Board.

Courts

WAUPACA — Judge Nathan Wiese, County Court Branch 2, has appointed counsel and continued the case of Frances Porter, 1210 Maple St., Neenah, who is charged with writing a worthless check on Jan. 28 to the Bowlby Candy Co. She will appear at 9 a.m. Aug. 5.

Bond was set at $1,000.

WAUPACA — Action was dismissed Monday in County Court Branch 2 against Wilbert Zillmer, route 1, Marion, who was charged with disorderly conduct and battery in an April 7 altercation with Emil Schoenrock, Town of Dupont.

Schoenrock released his criminal complaint upon the payment of $100 by the defendant and the court dismissed action with the payment of costs.

WAUPACA — Three Milwaukee juveniles will be charged in Juvenile Court with vandalizing of the Faulks Bros. Construction Co. crushing plant, located on County Trunk Q in the Town of Farmington.

Sheriff's department officers, investigating the report from Olive Faulks on July 19, found that there had been extensive damage to equipment at the crushing plant. An estimated 350 pounds of rifle fire had been spent on equipment tires, the fuel wagon, tail lights and oil drums. Broken bottles in the gravel pit makes the gravel unsafe to use.

Preliminary estimate of damage is $3,500. Department investigators and a county traffic officer, together with city police, traced the suspect's car and the purchase of large quantities of .22 rim-fire cartridges from a local store. The arrests were made Saturday afternoon.

The 17-year-old boys have been released to their parents and complaints are being processed.

WAUPACA — Judge Nathan Wiese, County Court Branch 2, has found Robert Malone, 30, route 2, Manawa, guilty of disorderly conduct in a July 16 incident when the defendant created a disturbance at the home of his estranged wife's parents and threatened his wife.

Malone was fined $100 and cost or 20 days in the county jail. He was given 60 days to pay the fine.

A second charge of battery, brought in Mrs. Malone's criminal complaint, claiming that her husband started a fight with a neighbor, was continued until Jan. 20. The court told Malone that if he behaved himself in the meantime the battery charge would be dismissed.

Malone was ordered to pay $100 a month for the support of his wife and 2-year-old child. He has visitation rights twice a month.

WAUPACA — Jack L. Allison, 23, 202 1/2 N. Main St., was convicted of arson and criminal damage to property in connection with fires set at the Riverview Nursing Home on March 28 and April 18, when he appeared Monday in County Court Branch 2.

Judge Nathan Wiese sentenced the defendant to 30 months in the Wisconsin State Reformatory, Green Bay, on the criminal damage by fire to a building and three months in the county jail on the lesser charge. Sentences are to run concurrently.

Allison was sent to Central State Hospital for a mental examination after his first court appearance April 25.

In a separate trial Monday, Allison pleaded guilty to five counts of "no account checks" cashed at five local stores and taverns in amounts ranging up to $25.

He was found guilty and sentenced to one year in the Waupaca County jail on each count, with sentences to run concurrently, and concurrent with the 30 months to be served at the reformatory.

Weyauwega victory gives Waupaca top BABA spot

Waupaca clinched first place in the south-central division of the Badger Amateur Baseball Association Sunday with a 17-3 victory over visiting Weyauwega.

In other action in the division, Symco held on to second place as it pounded Lanark, 15-3, while Buena Vista beat Manawa, 9-4. Scandinavia at New London was postponed due to Legion tournament action on the New London diamond.

There are two games remaining in regular season play in the south-central division. New London and Symco each have two makeup games and all other teams have one makeup game. Buena Vista has none.

Waupaca collected 13 hits in its rout of Weyauwega as it scored 13 runs in the fourth inning and sailed to victory. John Holly pitched a four-hitter as he fanned 14. Two of Weyauwega's hits were homers by Greg Hildebrand while the other scored on an error. Rick Riddle led Waupaca with three hits, including a three-run homer. Dean High had a double and a three-run homer and Gary Whitney had a solo shot.

Larry Lucht was the winning pitcher for Symco, allowing four hits. Symco collected 15 hits, led by Dan Steinbach with four, including a home run, and Jim Hass with three. Lucht also homered. Ray Swetella was the winning pitcher.

Manawa outlasted Buena Vista, 12-9, but lost. Bruce Rayhorn was the winning pitcher and Jerry Brotz the loser. Rayhorn and Brian Berry had two hits each for Buena Vista and Ken Grosholski had two hits for Manawa and Dan Gloske had two home runs.

Games this weekend will have Symco (6-4) at Waupaca (10-1), Weyauwega (6-5) at Lanark (3-8), Buena Vista (5-7) at New London (5-5) and Scandinavia (6-5) at Manawa (2-8). Weyauwega and Symco will play a makeup game Thursday night on the Manawa diamond.

Minister receives heroism award

GREEN BAY — The Rev. M. K. Staskal of New London was among nine recipients of the Fort Howard Paper Foundations' Award of Valor at a presentation here Monday night.

Foundation president John Coffin presented engraved plaques and checks for $1,000 to Staskal, Mrs. Wayne Truttmann, Lt. Donald Van Straten, Patrick Mellen, all of Green Bay; Donald Opicka, Casco; Thomas Wudke, Little Suamico; Phillip Armstrong and Donald Galleke, Marinette; and Nancy Schroeder of Sturgeon Bay.

Staskal earned the award when he rescued Henry Zeller from the Wolf River on Jan. 25, 1974. Staskal had taken his sons ice fishing. He heard a call for help and found that Zeller had fallen through the ice farther down the river. Staskal, a nonswimmer, crossed the river toward Zeller, but broke through. However, he was able to pull himself out and reach Zeller with his ice chisel. As he attempted to pull Zeller from the freezing water, he again broke through the ice but was able to complete the rescue and help Zeller to shore.

Mrs. Truttmann accepted the award for her husband, who was killed on Dec. 20, 1973, in a shoot-out in the Brown County Safety Building saltpore. Van Straten was wounded in the incident.

Opicka waded through chest-deep water in the flood-swollen Kewaunee River on May 28, 1973, to throw a rope to five people stranded in tree branches offshore.

Wudke crawled through heavy smoke and fire to rescue his unconscious neighbor, Mrs. Phyllis Rost, from her burning mobile home on Feb. 15, 1974.

Mellen, 13, rescued Susan Garriet, 5, after she had fallen into the icy water of Duck Creek on March 16, 1974.

Armstrong rescued one of two girls who had fallen through the ice in the Menominee River near the Koss Interstate Bridge by tying a rope to himself and to the back of his truck and walking out across the ice.

Mrs. Schroeder saved her 2-year-old son on April 18, 1974, after she found him floating face down in the spring-fed pond near their home. She swam out to retrieve him and then gave mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Defining an impeachable offense

Determination of what constitutes an impeachable offense has taken a great deal of time of the members of the House Judiciary Committee and well it might. Yet those Founding Fathers who wrote the United States Constitution paid it little heed. Which of course makes for the problem today.

The men who drew up the Constitution, however, did give a great deal of time and thought to the nature of the executive itself. Their own history, the status of government in Europe at the time and their immediate concerns are obvious.

The earlier Articles of Confederation provided for no clearly defined executive at all. Instead Congress was authorized to set up "committees and civil officers as may be necessary for managing the general affairs of the united states under their direction." Anyone appointed by Congress to preside over them could serve only one year out of any three. There obviously was not going to be a strong man taking over the affairs of the young United States.

It didn't work but there were other lacks in the Articles of Confederation which contributed to their demise as well.

Delegates to the Constitutional Convention were split on the nature of the executive. One faction believed absolutely in a weak executive, chosen by and responsible to the legislature. The other group denied this theory of separation of powers led to the presidential elector compromise. Few if any delegates to the Constitutional Convention believed in democracy to the extent of direct popular election.

Other elements contributed to the nature of the executive as it developed at the convention. The compact theory of government, the doctrine of natural law, the concept of executive authority as almost inherently corrupt, and the development of the dominance of common law translated into a written constitution and being supreme over legislature and executive, all had their impact.

Indirectly then the concept of the executive being subject to the reins of judicial review and legislative restraint spelled out in the separation of powers, and his subservience to the Constitution as supreme law, put their stamp upon impeachment. Those who wrote the Constitution probably did not believe they had to be more descriptive of what constituted an impeachable offense. That would by necessity be left to future generations as the occasion arose.

NATO consultation works

When Foreign Ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization met a few weeks ago, they agreed to consult with each other if serious threats to peace occurred. The crisis of the Cyprus revolt gave them that opportunity. It was a considerable success, at least so far.

Within two hours of the outbreak, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the foreign ministers of nine countries were able to be in touch with one another about the dangers. Not only that, they agreed on how to word sharp warnings to the governments of both Turkey and Greece. While Turkey went ahead and invaded Cyprus, it did not push the conflict to a bloody conclusion. The military junta in Greece resigned. No one knows how much NATO unity influenced both countries.

No one knows either how the foreign ministers would have acted in case Greece and Turkey did go to war. But presumably, after the first desperate flurry of averting the conflict was over, the foreign ministers must have considered what to do in case the worst happened. Their unity may also have influenced the Soviet Union. The Russians strongly criticized Greece and seemed completely on the side of the Turks but they issued no particularly bombastic statements. Apparently the Turkish government either felt it did not have the complete support of the Russians or it feared to get into a situation where that might occur.

Last fall European members of NATO were highly critical of the United States for its unilateral alerting of its military forces; at the time of the Middle East October war. Had they known how casually that decision was made, they might have been even more concerned. Secretary Kissinger later blasted various European governments for seeking and making independent deals with the oil producing nations.

There have been new governments in a number of NATO countries since that time. All have slim majorities or must arrange coalition compromises in order to govern. This may have made them more accommodating. The United States government is not currently in the best of shape either. Secretary Kissinger is well aware of the value of consultation and negotiation and presumably no one is ordering him to go it alone.

There is also a truism regarding human beings that cooperation often accompanies danger. Nations, like people, often find it more difficult to get along with each other when there is no outside threat to their safety.

Reportedly Secretary Kissinger is anxious to use the new consultative practices in such areas as trade and monetary policies. But individual nations are usually quite persnickety about such matters. Even the threat of worse world-wide inflation may not encourage much cooperation.

But it apparently worked quite well over Cyprus and that is a large plus after quite a few discouraging minuses.

This is going too far

Man has survived and thrived on his ingenuity. He has made something useful out of something useless and so prospered. He has made something beautiful out of something ugly and so been made happy.

It is possible that man has now stretched this marvelous ingenuity just a bit too far. A trader in Idaho has found that he can coat elk chips and make them into jewelry. And that some people will pay real money for the privilege of having dung dangling from the earlobes or droppings draped from their tie tacks.

It is perhaps a good time to say "whoa" to this fad before we find ourselves sporting buffalo chip chapeaus or making centerpieces out of horse paddies.

How much is incumbency advantage worth?

MADISON — A recent study of respectable sponsorship has estimated that the member of the House of Representatives starts his campaign for re-election with a $275,000 financial advantage over the typical challenger.

The $275,000 is the amount of tax-funded subsidy the incumbent enjoys in salary, allowances, staff and miscellaneous goodies that generations of predecessors have provided by law, so slowly and quietly that most of their constituents were almost wholly unaware of them.

The "incumbency advantage" will have more consideration as the country moves ever more determinedly to fix controls over the use of money in political campaigns. It is perfectly evident that the man who has a campaign chest of $100,000, for example, in a contest with another who has $50,000 or less, starts as the favorite, all other considerations being equal. If the $275,000 incumbency bonus of a congressman is a reasonable computation, indeed, then the handicap a competitor, party popularity aside, is enormous and in many instances must be a serious obstacle to recruitment by the parties.

That deterrent, however it is measured, is likely to become more important, especially in other important offices involving the integrity of representative government.

In state politics, the familiar illustration of change in the competitive positions of incumbent and challenger is the state legislature. Too much emphasis has been put upon literal salary. The current compensation of about $10,000 is not excessive if it is viewed with some understanding of the rapidly changed duties and time requirements of legislative membership during a short period. A reasonable case can be made, indeed, for the $16,000 level that will prevail for state senators and representatives after 1975. In most instances, the legislator's earnings are unlikely to be appreciably higher than those of a typical challenger.

The "incumbency factor" relates to the extras. Nobody has yet translated them into a generally acceptable dollar equivalent, perhaps because incumbents don't like to talk about them and outsiders don't wholly understand them.

The salary of a state senator beginning next year will be $16,000, for example. But that will be a comparatively small part of his compensation, considering political campaign gains realistically. Under present arrangements he is entitled to employ an administrative assistant and a secretary. If he is a committee chairman, he can claim more assistance.

He has telephone service at state expenses and an allowance for postage and printing that is nominally controlled but is generously flexible in practice. He has specialized resources in his party caucus budget, notably for publicity and miscellaneous political assistance. In a reasonable measure, his perquisites are substantially more valuable in dollar terms than the total of $16,000 a rival is allowed to spend to compete with him in the next election.

A better example, perhaps, is the office of governor. The law allows $500,000 to be spent by a gubernatorial candidate. But that seems more generous for the challenger than it is likely to be in typical contests, because of the enormous advantage of the incumbent governor in staff, travel, command of publicity, research assistance, communications, auto and related allowances, housing and entertainment account, to suggest the major perquisites. Each of these to a degree is granted with an awareness that it will serve a political as well as a general public purpose and with the knowledge of everybody concerned that no auditor will ever turn up to attempt a demarcation.

Indeed, the resources of the incumbent have grown to such an extent that in a typical situation the hope for unseating him must relate to his record, rather than in matching his communication with the voter. Thus there will be continuing talk about establishing a price on "incumbency advantage" by law. But there is little chance that an agreeable formula can be devised. The incumbents will be making the decision.

AND ALL THE PRESIDENT'S LAWYERS AND ALL THE PRESIDENT'S PR MEN....

'Pride' prompts Detroit cleanup

DETROIT (AP) — Pride is said to be uplifting, but for this city it also leads to facelift.

This year's annual spring cleaning, a project called "Pride" by Detroiters, saw over 4,000,000 pounds of trash and debris picked up from the streets and alleys of an 80-square-mile section of the Motor City.

The program, which began in 1970, involved some 125,000 residents as well as Detroit businessmen who contributed $25,000 to pay for supplies and promotional material. Fire stations passed out 250,000 trash bags and police precincts distributed bumper stickers and posters. The Detroit Department of Public Works sent 1,000 men and 250 sanitation trucks on special runs throughout the city, while the Michigan National Guard assigned 50 trucks and 200 men to patrol the area, collecting debris too heavy or bulky for the sanitation trucks to handle.

Look what nine months have seen

It is incredible, in retrospect, how much has changed in the nine months since the House Judiciary Committee was authorized to begin its inquiry into the charges of corruption against President Nixon.

As the swift rush of events leads toward the possible impeachment of the President, it is useful to pause and reflect upon those changes. This country has come a long way, baby, since that fateful October.

That was the month the scandal entered its final phase, although it was not apparent at the time. The President was still very much in charge of the country. A Gallup poll had recently indicated that only 19 per cent of those surveyed thought the President's actions serious enough for removal from office, and a special Sindinger Report found that more Americans felt Sen. Edward Kennedy's Chappaquiddick accident was "more morally reprehensible" than Watergate. The Senate Watergate hearings had wounded Nixon, but a continued slide downward did not seem inevitable.

The House Judiciary Committee began its task two weeks after the President named House Minority Leader Gerald Ford to be his second Vice President, replacing his previous favorite, who had just been sentenced for tax evasion.

In those days, the country had scarcely heard of Gerald Ford. Today, Ford is the runaway choice for the 1976 presidential nomination of his party and runs only 11 per cent behind Sen. Edward Kennedy in the latest Gallup presidential trial heat.

The mood changes. Back in October, the public was fearful of the impeachment process and the trauma it might inflict upon the country. Bumper stickers which proclaimed "get off his back" were popular. But in the intervening months, as the evidence has poured forth, the mood has steadily changed from "don't do it" to "get it over with." Even a temporary wish that the President would resign and save the nation from impeachment has faded, in favor of a strong sentiment that the democratic process must function to completion. The President's job approval rating, according to the Gallup poll, is now at 24 per cent.

Since October, 22 high federal officials and presidential advisers have pleaded guilty or been convicted of crimes, and more have been indicted but not yet tried. The President, except for intermittent public displays of activity, has increasingly withdrawn. He now apparently speaks only to blind loyalists and allows no outside input at all. The ambassador of an important European ally recently reported to his government that the President is no longer able to influence either domestic or foreign policy.

In the past nine months, a remarkable campaign financing reform bill

Potomac Fever

The Nixon-Kissinger relationship seems to have cooled since the White House closed off Henry's parking space for repairs.

The Ervin panel's final report recommended extensive reform of election laws. It didn't believe we were getting the best candidates money could buy.

Economic adviser Rush said the government had no medicine to cure the disease of inflation. A little old fashioned epsom salts could purge the military spending.

Just when the administration thought they had sold Americans on the idea that perjury and conspiracy were patriotic, the Ehrlichman jury handed them the Bill of Rights.

Bebe Rebozo reportedly used campaign funds to heat the San Clemente pool and buy $5,000 earrings for Pat Nixon. It comes under the heading of "Presidential improvements."

has passed the Senate and been reporting out of a House committee with good chance for final approval. It would substitute public financing for the whole corrupt system of private financing of presidential campaigns and revolutionize the way Presidents reach office.

In those same months, the economy has become so out of shape as to be considered by many inflation-pressed and recession-threatened Americans as an impeachable offense itself against Nixon.

A hero fades

Daniel Ellsberg, who was such a folk hero that he frightened the President into approving the covert operation that led to the Watergate burglary, has faded back into oblivion. His book, "Papers on the War," published at $8, is suffering the ultimate author's insult of being remanded by Publishers Central Bureau for a mere $1.

Henry Kissinger, the Nobel peace-prize winner who was the President's crown jewel, has been tarnished by the wiretapping controversy. Warren Burger, the President's choice for Chief Justice of the United States, and a man many consider to be one of the most political of all justices, has just presided over a unanimous court rebuke to the President.

Indeed, great changes. An historic crisis moves to a climax, and it is difficult to remember how it all was yesterday.

Banks to offer UWO student loan funds

OSHKOSH — In a major and precedent-setting move to assist students at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh, four Oshkosh banks have provided a $250,000 pool of student loan funds, according to a joint announcement by the presidents of the banks and the university chancellor.

Funds will be available under the federal guaranteed loan program to qualified UWO students who have been unable to secure loans from their hometown or other banks. Loan requests will be processed through the JWO financial aids office.

The four Oshkosh banks joining forces with the university in the cooperative program are the American, First Wisconsin, Oshkosh National and Western State banks.

"To my knowledge, this is the first time a group of financial institutions has made a commitment of this type to a university," Chancellor Robert Birnbaum said.

"This new program reflects their recognition of student needs and their concern that students be provided with the means for completing their education. It also indicates the kind of cooperation and goodwill that is being developed between the community and the university."

According to university officials, many students have had difficulties in the past securing the guaranteed loans from their hometown banks because of the administrative load involved in processing the loans or similar factors. Under the Oshkosh plan, the school's financial aid office will assume the administrative work involved.

"This new program will guarantee that every qualified UWO student who applies will be able to obtain a loan this year," Kenneth Cook, financial aids director, said.

The plan is being activated immediately so students entering UWO this fall may take advantage of the loan opportunity. Interested students should contact the financial aids office as soon as possible, according to Cook.

Working with the financial aids office, the Oshkosh bank group will rotate loan requests among its four members, except in the case where a student already had an account.

Under the federal guaranteed loan program, students may obtain loans at 7 per cent interest. In most cases, interest is waived until the student leaves school.

Social Security must be paid on household worker

Have you hired a household worker this summer? Household workers include cleaning women, maids, steady baby-sitters, gardeners, handymen and others who perform work in or about a private home.

If you pay a household worker $50 or more in cash wages in a calendar quarter, you must report those wages to the Internal Revenue Service, according to the local Social Security office. This report is due at the end of each quarter. A calendar quarter is a three-month period beginning Jan. 1, April 1, July 1, and Oct. 1.

Social Security contributions must be paid on these wages. You may deduct 5.85 per cent from the worker's wages or you may want to pay his part of his contributions yourself. Your contribution is an equal amount.

People who do similar work in rooming houses, boarding houses and hotels are covered even if they are paid less than $50 in a calendar quarter. Workers who perform similar duties on farms are also covered but under different conditions.

For more information, call or write your local Social Security office and ask for publication SSA 73-10021, "Social Security and Your Household Employee."

All candidates file disclosures

All of the candidates for office in Outagamie County this fall have filed the financial disclosure statements required under the county code of ethics.

The one-page affidavit gives the name, age, address and place of employment of the candidate; requires the listing of all sources of income in excess of $1,200 a year; and requires disclosure of any business dealings the candidate may have that could result in a conflict of interest in his holding public office.

No candidate reported any potential conflict of interest.

Wednesday deadline for employers to file Social Security, taxes

Wednesday is the last day for Wisconsin employers to report and pay Social Security and withheld federal income taxes for the second quarter of 1974.

Employers have until Aug. 12 to file Form 941, "Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return," if they have deposited the entire quarterly tax liability on time in a Federal Reserve Bank or authorized commercial bank, said Lawrence M. Phillips, IRS district director for Wisconsin.

Employers should use the pre-addressed Forms 941 mailed to them by the IRS, or obtain copies of the form from the nearest IRS office.

IRS Publication 15, "Circular E—Employer's Tax Guide," is available free from local IRS offices to provide more information for employers.

Method of computing bank interest makes a cash difference to savers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government ceilings offer small savers little choice in interest rates at federally chartered banks, but the way that interest is computed is another matter.

Bank specialists estimate there are as many as 50 different ways of computing interest.

The Federal Reserve Board, after a study as part of proposed truth-in-saving legislation, recommended Monday that the government avoid limiting savers' options by standardizing methods for computing interest.

Instead, the Fed supported legislation pending in a Senate committee to require fuller disclosure of how earnings are figured.

Cold cash is at stake for savers.

Take, for example, a husband and wife who decided in January to put away $100 every month toward a Christmas vacation.

If the money is saved at the maximum 5 per cent in a bank that uses a strict variety of the low quarterly balance system of figuring interest, the couple will have $1,111.30 to withdraw in December.

If the money is saved in a bank that uses day-of-deposit to day-of-withdrawal computations. They'll get back $1,127.64 at the same 5 per cent interest.

The difference is $16.34, or enough for a modest dinner for two.

The crucial factor is that the strict application of the minimum balance rule means the couple gets no interest for money on deposit in the January-March or October-December quarters. Their minimum balance in those periods was 0.

The day-of-deposit method, for the savings account depositor, rates virtually even with continuous compounding. Both methods offer the highest returns to the saver of the various computation methods currently used.

Yet an American Banking Association survey shows that more than half of the banks responding used some method with a lower return for savers than offered by day of deposit.

William Wood, associate director of the trade association's deposit division, said in an interview that the 41 per cent using day-of-deposit is an increase over the 20 per cent reporting use of the method in a 1968 survey.

Wood, who provided the estimate of the 50 different methods to compute interest, said the change also probably represents increased competition and reliance on computers. The complicated computations involved in the day-of-deposit method virtually require a computer.

Dispensing communion

Six of the 11 women ordained Monday as Episcopal priests in Philadelphia dispense their first communion at right, as one of the ordaining bishops, the Rt. Rev. Daniel Corrigan, looks on, top center. The women were the first female priests ordained in the Episcopal Church. (AP wirephoto)

Disciplinary restraints threatened against first Episcopal women priests

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Episcopal Church now has its first women priests, an office they gained in an open revolt against age-old ecclesiastical barriers.

They face threatened disciplinary restraints on their new ministry.

But the 11 women ordained here Monday, with four bishops conferring on them the order of priesthood, indicated a confidence about their future that resembled the exuberance of the occasion.

"I've been ministering to oppressed people, and I'll continue to do that — as a priest," said the Rev. Katrina Swanson, of Leawood, Kan., one of the newly ordained women.

Their hopeful mood, expressed at a news conference, followed a crowded, clamorous but jubilant three-hour ceremony of hymns, litanies and solemn vows. About 1,500 people boomed out the responses and songs.

"Amen!" they thundered after each prayer. Applause swelled repeatedly through the high-domed sanctuary, the century-old Church of the Advocate.

"Take thou authority to execute the office of a priest in the church of God," the bishops pronounced in turn, placing their hands on the heads of the new ministers in the ancient ritual, as television lights glared in the chancel area.

Scores of robed priests extended their hands, in a gesture co-affirming the action. Many came from other cities to cheer the advent of women priests.

It happened in defiance of the church's practice and traditions, and ran counter to 20 centuries of male dominance of Christian priesthood.

"We believe it is a Christian duty to disobey unjust laws," Charles V. Willie, a Harvard professor and vice president of the church's lay-clergy House of Deputies, told the congregation.

The women are not only the first female priests in the Episcopal Church's history, but the first in the Western world to be ordained through the so-called "apostolic succession."

This is a chain of authority carried on through the generations by bishops since the time of Jesus' apostles, a lineage maintained in Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox and Anglican churches, of which the Episcopal Church is the American branch.

At a point in the rite when retired Colorado Bishop Daniel Corrigan asked if those present knew of "any impediments" to the ordinations, several priests stepped forward to voice dissent.

"Unlawful and schismatical," protested the Rev. Charles H. Osborne, executive director of the American Church Union, an Anglo-Catholic group.

A "renegade service," said the Rev. James Leach, of Providence, R.I.

"Perversion," accused the Rev. George Rutler, of Philadelphia, drawing a wave of boos.

Bishop Corrigan replied that Scripture and Christian teaching challenge "our customary rules and ways," and not only permit the ordination action but "command it."

Above the altar hung a Scripture quotation, "In Christ there is neither male nor female... We are one."

Unexpectedly, a currently active prelate, Bishop Antonio Ramos, of Costa Rica, joining Bishop Corrigan and two other retired bishops in officiating at the service.

He termed it an act of "ecclesiastical disobedience on our part, willfully done to abolish a system of canon laws which is discriminatory" against women.

The other two participating bishops were retired West Missouri Bishop Edward R. Welles, now of Manset, Maine, and resigned Philadelphia Bishop Robert Dewitt.

"Some of us will be considered mavericks," Bishop Ramos told the news conference afterward, predicting disciplinary efforts may be forthcoming, but he added that "unjust laws must be challenged."

The church's triennial general convention twice has narrowly defeated moves to authorize women priests, the last time by a technicality, although a majority of lay-clergy delegates favored the proposed change.

So has a majority of the church's bishops.

Elliot dies at 33, cause not yet determined

LONDON (AP) — Britain's top pathologist said after an autopsy today that further tests would be needed to determine how "Mama" Cass Elliot, the sweet-voiced 238-pound pop singer, died.

Prof. Keith Simpson gave no details of his examination, but said she did not appear to have died from natural causes. He did not elaborate.

Police said an inquest will be held at Westminster coroner's court Wednesday.

Simpson's statement came only hours after the singer's doctor, Anthony Greenburg, told newsmen: "I think the post-mortem will probably show that she died as a result of choking on a sandwich while lying in bed and inhaling her own vomit."

"She was a very big lady and I could not rule out the possibility of a heart attack."

Dot MacLeod, the singer's secretary, said she found the 33-year-old star's body Monday afternoon slightly propped up in her double bed in the six-room apartment she was occupying during engagements in Britain. The television set was on, and a ham sandwich and a soft drink were beside her pillow, Miss MacLeod said.

"She had been dead for a considerable time before her body was found," Dr. Greenburg said.

The singer, who rose to fame in the 1960s as the leading Mama of The Mamas and the Papas, completed a two-week engagement at the Palladium Saturday night. She was preparing to start a tour of Britain.

The church's laws don't specifically ban women priests, but tradition and practice have done so. The canons do require that priestly candidates be recommended by their home bishop's diocesan standing committee, but that was not forthcoming in the ordination of the women.

This was the basis of some objections, and of indicated disciplinary steps to keep the women from exercising their priesthood. Only priests can celebrate communion, the church's central act of worship.

Besides the Rev. Mrs. Swanson, the women are the Revs. Merrill Bittner, 27, of Webster, N.Y.; Alla Bozarth Campbell, 27, and Jeanette Piccard, 29, both of Minneapolis; Alison Cheek, of Annandale, Va.; Emily Hewitt, 30, of Newton Centre, Mass.; Carter Heyward, 29, of New York City; Suzanne Hiatt, 37, of Philadelphia; Betty Schiess, 51, of Syracuse, N.Y.; Nancy Wittig, 28, of Warren, N.J.; and Marie Moorefield, 30, of Topeka, Kan.
